OUR THING

STUDENT LIFE

We took part in our school. We set standards and achieved goals. Participating in clubs and groups was one way to show our school spirit. We became a part of everything we attempted and celebrated in doing "our thing".

Opening the floor to discussion, Student Council President Aaron Duvernay, and Vice President Scott Rosevear initiate debate concerning the student forum.

Murmurs of excited conversation filled the choir room as nearly three dozen ecstatic youths chatted about the previous summer's adventures and their first week back at PHS.

"I know how much we'd all like to visit here, but we do have some important things to talk about," began President Aaron Duvernay. Election of Freshman council members and the organization of the year's first dance demanded immediate attention. From its first meetings in early September, the 1985/86 PHS Student Council began to adopt Duvernay's no-nonsense attitude toward addressing the issues and making accomplishments.

"We had fewer meetings, but they were more formal," said Sophomore class president Amy McMullen.

Duvernay conducted meetings in a straightforward, organized manner, calming the previously chaotic open discussion format used at all meetings. Responding to popular sentiment, the council petitioned PHS principal Robert Doctor to reinstate Homecoming float competition amongst the four classes. Both the float competition and the Snake Dance which preceded it proved to be overwhelmingly popular and successful.

Even at the Student Council's "Thanksgiving" pizza party, votes were cast concerning the painting of a mural in the memory of deceased PHS student Mark Leshner.

Senior Brent Phillips presented the council, now some forty members strong, with a plan for a community swimming pool, tentatively located on PHS property. The pursuit of the pool's funding and construction would later prove to be an ongoing task for the council.

Attending the Student Leadership Forum's luncheon, junior class representatives take time out to chat about the day's events.

The State Department of Education's "Project Outreach — Student Leadership Forum" was held at NCMC in Petoskey. Over forty PHS students attended, including a majority of the student council. Featuring an inspirational message from renowned speaker Jim Tuman, the Forum united 400 students from eleven area schools to discuss problems facing them and their peers. The Forum, the second of its kind in the area, was regarded by many to be largely successful.

Throughout the course of the 1985/86 school year, the council developed a great deal of its political influence over student matters.

STUDENT COUNCIL TACKLES THE ISSUES

Council members listen to February's treasurers report as PHS Principal Robert Doctor looks on.

Homecoming '86 was a word that meant much to many people. The court, float builders, staff, student body, football team, and entire community looked forward to a festive homecoming night.

Spirits rose at PHS during the week of homecoming. Students and staff alike dressed to show school spirit. Spirit days included grub day, accident day, nerd day, and blue and white day.

During the same week, float builders anticipated the homecoming parade where the floats were judged. Due to vandalism in past, all floats were built in different locations with chaperones present. After long hours of work on the floats, the students displayed them at the parade. They were all outstanding, but the sophomore float prevailed.

Homecoming night finally came, but it wasn't the football game that gathered cheers. It was the halftime show. Voters had already nominated Andrea Zinn, Belinda Bishop, Anne VanDam, Laurie Reid, and Sue Hall for queen. Scott Conti had been voted as King. At a spectacular moment, the crowd cheered as Anne VanDam was crowned homecoming Queen of 1985-86. After the crowning ceremony, the football game resumed. It was a fierce battle between the Northmen and the Blue Devils until the closing of the game where the score was announced as 13-0 in Gaylord's favor.

But the football score didn't seem to matter as high spirits soared and homecoming 1985-86 drew to a close.

Homecoming king and queen, Scott Conti and Anne VanDam, lead the celebration with a dance.

Jackie Wojichowski, Michelle Flynn, Dana Frank, and Phyllis Pemberton chant the merits of their hard work as the junior float makes its way through downtown Petoskey in the traditional homecoming parade.

Laurie Reid watches the exciting moment when Anne VanDam joins Scott Conti, king as homecoming queen.

Several large and small goals were set by the Spanish club this year. Under the leadership of president Anne VanDam, vice president Cindy Chaffin, treasurer Emily Hamilton, and secretary Dave Farley, the club strived to attain these goals.

The first major project of the club was to take a trip to Spain. In mid-January, plans were changed by the administrative office. The trip was cancelled due to terrorist activities in Europe. Although the primary goal was not achieved, many other goals were.

One constant project of the club was to make money to support itself. Members achieved this through a series of fundraisers. They started out with a string of low profit bake sales, followed by a pennant sales drive. Another fundraiser was the Christmas dance, which was the major money maker of the year. The final sales drive was in early February, featuring Gummy Bears and Zotz pops.

The club's last goal was to take the Spanish National Exam. Spanish club sponsored it by offering to pay one of the two dollars needed for entry. The Spanish club also provided prizes for the top scorers in the competition.

Although the Spanish Club did not reach all of its set goals, it did put forth the great effort needed to achieve as many as possible.

Meanwhile, with the success of the night club dance and the powder puff football game, the French club's executives considered the amount of money raised this year its biggest accomplishment. The purpose of the money was for a trip to France and for the club to experience its culture. Unfortunately this trip was also cancelled due to terrorism in Europe.

While enjoying a special social atmosphere, the French club executives felt that the attitudes of the members had changed.

Members had become more aware of the necessities of fundraisers.

French club meetings consisted of announcements of upcoming events then discussion of assigned jobs and new ideas.

Membership in French Club totalled approximately 40, but the attendance at the meetings was much lower. Elected in the spring of 1985, the officers were: president, Courtney Burns; vice-president, Jill Mathews; secretary, Jenny Griffin; treasurer, Caroline Kosnik.

UNITING FOR GROUP

Increased membership and unified spirit marked the beginning of the '85-'86 International Club. Although the reasons for the sudden interest in the club were not apparent, the introduction of two exchange students at the start of school may have had an impact. Robin Haas from Lueneburg, Germany and Moyes Andrade from Salvador, Brazil proved to be valuable assets to the club stating "the club is a good idea for exchange students in the beginning."

The club delighted in the sharing of these two new cultures, and was even more pleased to have Fernanda Faro from Sao Paulo, Brazil and Cesar Reyes from San Gil, Columbia who joined at semester.

At monthly meetings all intercultural experiences were exchanged. These experiences also included those of former PHS exchange students and student travelers. Cristan Allen started the year by sharing her experiences of living in Finland for a summer. Rufus Welshiemer showed his slides on Scandinavia, and Chip Stowe explained his voyage through the Caribbean.

Furthering the exchange experience, the club banded together in group activities. T-shirts were made sporting the club with the emblem created by exchange student Robin Haas. To raise the club funds, M&M's were sold throughout the schools. A dance and concession stand were also sponsored by the International Club. "It's a good group because there are more than four permanent members and we do things," stated Lisa Leshner, a PHS senior. Other activities included the sale of garbage bags for the community pool and a spring car wash.

Motivated spirits drive Moyes Andrade and Robin Haas to participate in PHS student life. Both play on the soccer teams, and both swing to PHS music. German and Brazilian customs spread through the school.

Six months at PHS opens new doors for Caesar Reyes and Fernanda Faro. Caesar acts as an interpreter for Ecuador Business men and Fernanda interprets Brazilian slang for PHS students.

Mrs. Kalkbrenner was enthusiastic over the revitalization of the club. Since her institution of the International Club in 1973, she has seen many groups, but said, "this was the best year." The increased membership and unified group delighted Mrs. Kalkbrenner and gave her a memorable farewell as she retired this year.

Club officers were Cristan Allen, president; Brent Phillips, vice president; Dee Pettitjean, secretary; and Phil Baerwolf, treasurer. Mrs. Barb Aho and Mr. Jim McCullough were also club advisers.

ACTIVITIES

After hearing his name, Phil Baerwolf finds the hardest part is to hold his hand steady enough to sign the official NHS book.

New spirit and dedication epitomized the '85-'86 National Honor Society members. Community projects presented an immediate challenge for the group, but with enthusiasm the challenge was met and goals were achieved.

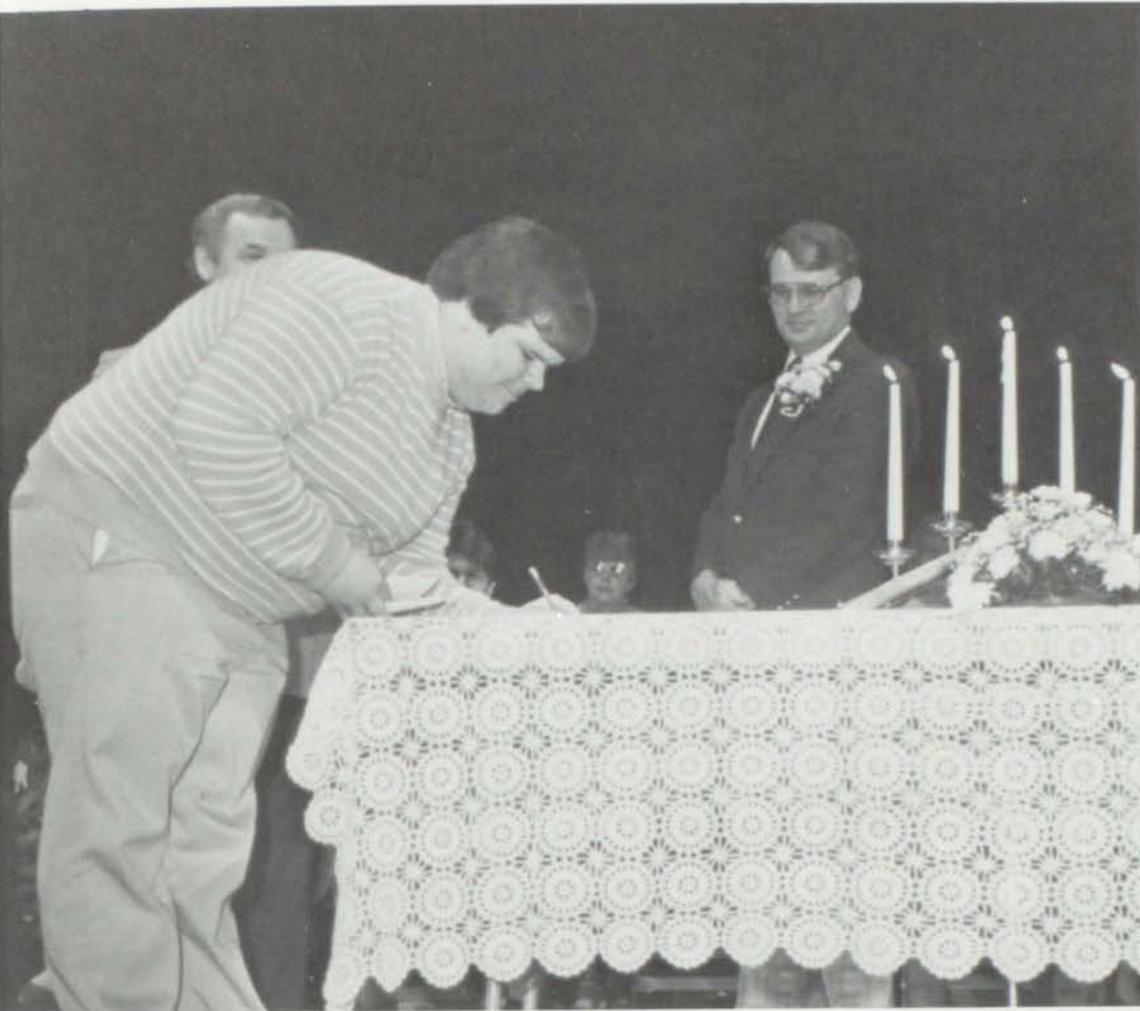

Officers elected from the previous year, Anne VanDam, president; Steve Ross, vice president; Dan Rasmussen, treasurer; Cathy Jakob, secretary, influenced the NHS activity. First planned was a visit to the Emmet County Care Facility. "It was awkward; really awkward at first," stated Michelle Rosel. Despite the apprehension, the NHS group and patients made many memories while enjoying each others company.

Further, the two annual blood drives were sponsored by the society. "The blood drives were the most fun," said Jim Russell. The Red Cross workers were pleased with NHS's efforts and were even more thrilled at the turn out for the second drive during the power outage.

Also NHS raised money and Valentines Day spirit by the traditional carnation sales.

Members dedication to their community and school surfaced in the activities during the year. "The club is great, they do special things that other groups might not do." Steve Ross said.

Fall induction brought only two new members. Lisa Leshner and Angela Moegenberg were welcomed to the Petoskey chapter of National Honor Society. The spring ceremony concluded the year with the induction of fourteen juniors: Dave Hudson, Ken Todd, Daniel Burron, Lisa Daniels, April Balabon, Michelle Meengs, Phil Baerwolf, Andy Barger, Steve Helmer, Michelle Flynn, Diane Osborne, Scott Hickman, Eric Bufe, and Caroline Kosnik.

Playing the Northmen's street beat, Lisa Satmary, Brian Sepala, and Jobi Blachy leave the field after the Chesaning show.

Standing with confidence, Ken Todd directs the Marching Northmen to victory at the state competition at Plymouth, where Petoskey received a total of over 50 points.

Music echoes through the hallways arousing sleepy students just entering the school. Early morning rehearsals are among the routine for the marching band who spent approximately eight hours weekly practicing. Mr. Carl Brien, band director, remarked, "... Contrary to public belief, marching band is totally extracurricular, involving intensive daily rehearsals."

All this hard work secured them a place in band history as number one marching band in the state. On October 25, 1985, the Marching Northmen attended the state finals in Plymouth and were proud to return with top honors for the 1985 State Marching Band Competition.

Mr. Brien stated, "We've been working toward this goal and seeking it for the last four years."

At state competition, the band received honors for work, positive attitude, best horn line, best field commanders, and best marching and maneuvering. They were also given the highest point total for the halftime show which they presented to eight judges at the competition. Drum majors, Ken Todd and Brent Phillips also received special honors of best drum major trophies. Mr. Brien commented, "We're really happy all the hard work paid off. The kids deserved what they got."

Returning to Petoskey, the Marching Northmen were rewarded with a police escort to the high school due to a proud community. Upon returning to school the following Monday, the marching band chanted while running through the halls, "We're number one, second to none!"

Playing the xylophone, Jennifer Shulte, Andy Smith, and Ben Kosnik perform well at one of the many shows throughout the year.

Bowing during the song Classical Gas, Kevin Gietzen gives the drum solo complete attention.

Playing "Jump for My Love", Jason Raaddatz, Brent Phillips, Becky Mosser, Brian Bucksteigal, Bill Meengs, Cindy Taylor, Jen Todd, Rufus Welsheimer, and Jennifer Kellogg arouse spirit among the audience at a basketball game.

PHS Jazz Band, Century, performed at two concerts. The first was a benefit to the music boosters and the second was the Spring Concert on May 22nd. At the Spring Concert, Century played "Rockit," "Never Gonna Let You Go," and "Main Squeeze." Some band members even wore sunglasses to make the performances more like a "jam session" in the 1930's. At the Spring Concert, Century even received a standing ovation for their outstanding performance.

Band Director, Mr. Brien stated, "This year's Jazz Band did exceptionally well."

Lynn Aspenleiter also said, "This band is much more relaxed than the others, You get to add your own style. That's what makes Jazz Band fun."

The word "pep" means brisk energy or initiative usually accompanied by high spirits. That is exactly what the PHS Pep Band added to basketball games.

At the beginning of the games, the Pep Band played "The Star Spangled Banner" and the fight song. At half-time, they led the Northmen to victory by playing such songs as "Hang on Sloopy," "Jump for my Love," and "State of Shock." And of course, everyone who went to the games heard "Let's Go Blue" and "Our Director," the school song.

In addition to playing at the basketball games, the Pep Band did a Halloween Civics Service Performance for Ottawa Elementary School.

Mr. Brien said, "We try to make the crowd crazy, and if not them, we make ourselves crazy."

CONCERT BAND IMPROVE

Waiting to start their next song, Carrie Cutler, Jennifer Yankee, Jayna Weston, Susan Clave, Phil Holec, and Erik Schupbach listen to Mr. Brien's pep talk for the next song.

On their coronets, Lisa Harrison and Percilla Goldsmith play "Raiders of the Lost Ark" at the annual Spring Concert.

Resting after the Concert Band performance at the Christmas Concert are Jennifer Kellogg, Sheri Lambertson, Wendy Galbraith, Kelly Stinchcomb, and Linda Foster.

In his baritone solo at the Spring Concert, Erich Schupbach plays "The Blue and The Gray."

S THROUGHOUT YEAR

At the Spring Concert, Rachel Brecheisen and Phil Holec play "Raiders of the Lost Ark."

Composed of mainly freshmen, PHS Concert Band did a good job of preparing students for their futures in Wind Ensemble and other extracurricular bands.

During second hours, the band practiced for their various concerts by playing such songs as "Raiders of the Lost Art Medley," "Fantasy for Band," and "Great Lakes Overture."

At the Christmas Concert, the band played "Chestnuts" and "Fanfare and Chorale."

They also performed at District Band Festivals where they received a II, I, II judging for performance and a II for sight reading.

At the State Festivals, the Concert Band played "The Blue and the Gray" and "Cats Melody."

They also played some of their favorite songs at the annual Spring Concert.

Carl Brien, Band Director, stated, "The Concert Band was made up of a lot of talented individuals who worked very hard all year long to improve and to have a successful year. They did have a successful year and one of which they should be proud of."

Jennifer Kellogg said, "Being in Concert Band has taught me a lot. Now I feel ready to tackle Wind Ensemble."

Concert Band students agree that the four main profits of Concert Band are discipline, responsibility, communication with the rest of the band, and a sense of pride in doing something well. "Each student realizes how much is relying on them, so they do their best for the band," replied Susan Clave.

PHS Symphonic Wind Ensemble, composed of approximately 51 members, mostly Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors dedicated much time to learning and playing fine music. "We develop a much deeper appreciation of music," claimed Patty Whitmyer, one of the 4 alto saxophone players in the wind ensemble.

Along with their traditional Christmas and Spring concerts, the ensemble also performed in an oration with other area bands to "Twas the Night Before Christmas." The show was aired on television December 22nd and 24th. Lynne Aspenleiter said happily, "It was a great feeling. Somehow you feel like you're part of a very important group when you're asked to tape a television program."

Due to these and other outstanding performances by the wind ensemble, they received a straight one rating on both state and district levels.

The ensemble, under the direction of Mr. Carl Brien, spent many hours rehearsing to reach this excellence. Along with first hour practices, Mr. Brien also recommends that students practice for one extra half an hour per day and always at their full potential.

Playing songs such as "Four Scottish Dances" and "Winds of Percussion," the wind ensemble learned discipline and responsibility. They also gained a sense of pride in knowing that they could do something well. Most of the students in the PHS Symphonic Wind Ensemble agree that, "It's a lot of fun."

Conscientiously, Pam Ellenberger, Cassie Whitmyer, Rufus Welsheimer, Jerry Malec, and Ken Todd, play "Sleigh Ride" at the annual Christmas Concert.

CHOIRS UNITE

Band director, Carl Brien lends a helping horn during the Christmas Concert held at the United Methodist Church.

Combined Choir musical director Ms. Cheryl McGinnis leads the group in singing "Gloria" at the Christmas Concert.

AS ONE

Band member Lisa Satmary accompanies the Combined Choir on the tympani.

Veteran singer Phil Redmond and new member Brian Muche perform "Gloria" in Latin.

Christmas Concert carolers Kathryn Flewelling and Carrie Kaghee add alto tones.

Joining together, the Chamber Choir, Concert Choir and Madrigal Singers united and became the Combined Choir. The groups' unified forces and voices enabled them to qualify for competition at Ann Arbor, the State Choral Festival and Michigan State University.

During the year, the Combined Choir performed four major concerts. The Fall Concert was held in October and performances included "What Would You Do If I Married a Soldier?", "Joan of Arc", and "In Memoria Aeterna". The Christmas Concert, performed at the Petoskey United Methodist Church featured "Gloria", in a rendition that was over twenty minutes of continuous singing. Spring Concert was held in May, featuring "Heaven" by pop artist Bryan Adams.

Throughout the year, the Combined Choir traveled together, which, according to music director Ms. Cheryl McGinnis, brought them closer together than previous years. "Dan Rasmussen was always telling his variety of sly, comical jokes," she stated.

Over 65 voices comprised the Combined Choir and each member was required to audition with Ms. McGinnis before being allowed to take the class. Although it was taught as a class, all performances and many rehearsals were all extra-curricular.

"Performing at the Mid-West Music Conference was an honor beyond comparison," stated Andy Hamp. Attending the Conference was a very critical audience of music teachers from Mid-Western Michigan. To apply for consideration, the group submitted a cassette tape of materials and was notified in the spring of their selection.

Toasting cheers, singers Andy Bargeron, Julie Waterson and Dan Rasmussen await their medevil dinner.

MADRIGALS

Possessing "great musical talents, dedication, and the ability to perform under pressure" has earned the Madrigal Singers the honor of being called "the best Madrigal group in PHS history" by their advisor and coordinator, Ms. Cheryl McGinnis.

The group has performed in over forty concerts and received numerous awards, including 1 District Solo and Ensemble and 1 District Choral Festival. Ms. McGinnis considers their greatest accomplishment as "their excellent performance at the Mid-west region of Michigan, where the audience was extremely critical."

Another special accomplishment was competing at the state level during the state final competition on April 12 and May 2.

The Madrigal Singers performed the 9th annual Madrigal Dinner Concert on December 8 at Staffords Bay View Inn. Songs of the 16th century, such as "Psalite" and "Deck the Halls" were sung. The performers dressed in costumes similar to what might have been worn by the lords and ladies who performed as Madrigal Singers in castles and country homes of the landed gentry. The costumes were all homesewn and made from old drapes, curtains, tunic, velour, felt, and taffeta.

Combining their talents with other choirs, The Madrigal singers practice approximately three solid weeks before each individual performance, and twice a month on a regular basis with the Combined Concert Choir. Senior performer Erich Wangeman stated "It's important to realize that like any other activity, Madrigal singing takes extra time and dedication; all performers must be willing to give 110%."

Madrigal singers — Teresa Maxwell, Dan Rasmussen, Julie Fitzgerald, Andy Hamp, Kristi Rager, Eric Buskirk, Tim Sattelmeyer, Corrina Morford, Kyle Diamond, Julie Raddatz, Erich Wangeman, Becky Sutfin, Steve Balog, Molly Nicholson, Andy Bargeron and Julie Waterson. Missing include Jerry Malec, Clayton Smith and Jackie Wojichowski.

ACHIEVE EXCELLENCE

PHS Musical Guys and Dolls opened Wednesday, May 14 to a nearly full house. As the house lights dimmed, the stage lights ignited to the opening number, followed by "Fugue for Tinhorns."

The classic spoof about gamblers, con-artists, horse-players and showgirls in 1950's New York was a Frank Loesser/Jo Swerling adoption of the story and characters created by Damon Runyon. Leading roles in the 2½ hour production were portrayed by a mixed cast of new talent and theatre veterans. Two of the latter, seniors Andy Hamp and Erich Wangeman, were reincarnated as Nathan Detroit and Sky Masterson, smooth talking hustlers trying to dodge marriage. Nathan prolonged his engagement to Miss Adelaide (Molly Nicholson) for fourteen years; Sky seduced a missionary on a wager with Nathan. Sophomore Julie Raddatz, whom many remember as Dorothy from last year's Wizard of Oz was Sky's star-crossed lover, Sarah Brown of the Army Mission.

Unknown to Nathan, Sky succeeds in taking Sarah to Havana, Cuba. Fortunately, they fall in love, and Sky's guilty conscience inhibits him from collecting his rewards from Nathan. In the end, Nathan is also snared, and the two couples join in holy matrimony in a double wedding.

"We could have used more rehearsals," admitted freshman Kristie Rager. "It was a little 'green' on Wednesday" she added. Director Cheryl McGinnis turned the reins of production over to her students for the duration of the play's run.

The public received it well, however, and the play sold out three of four nights.

All eyes are on Big Jule, who is rolling his "spotless" Chicago dice on a bet with Nathan Detroit.

Harmonizing in the duet "Sue Me," Miss Adelaide (Molly Nicholson) and Nathan Detroit (Andy Hamp) ponder their future together.

Coy gambler Harry the Horse (Ken Todd) leaps from a stairwell as Big Jule (John Thomas) waits impatiently for the craps game to commence. The "Crashshooters Dance" was followed by the popular "Luck Be a Lady."

Assistant stage manager Ronda McWatters applies finishing touches to scenery from Guys and Dolls.

Preparing to debate in the mock student congress at the state capital in Lansing are Diane Osborne and Brian Geitzen.

Calming last-minute jitters before the upcoming altercation are Brian Geitzen and Eric Bufe.

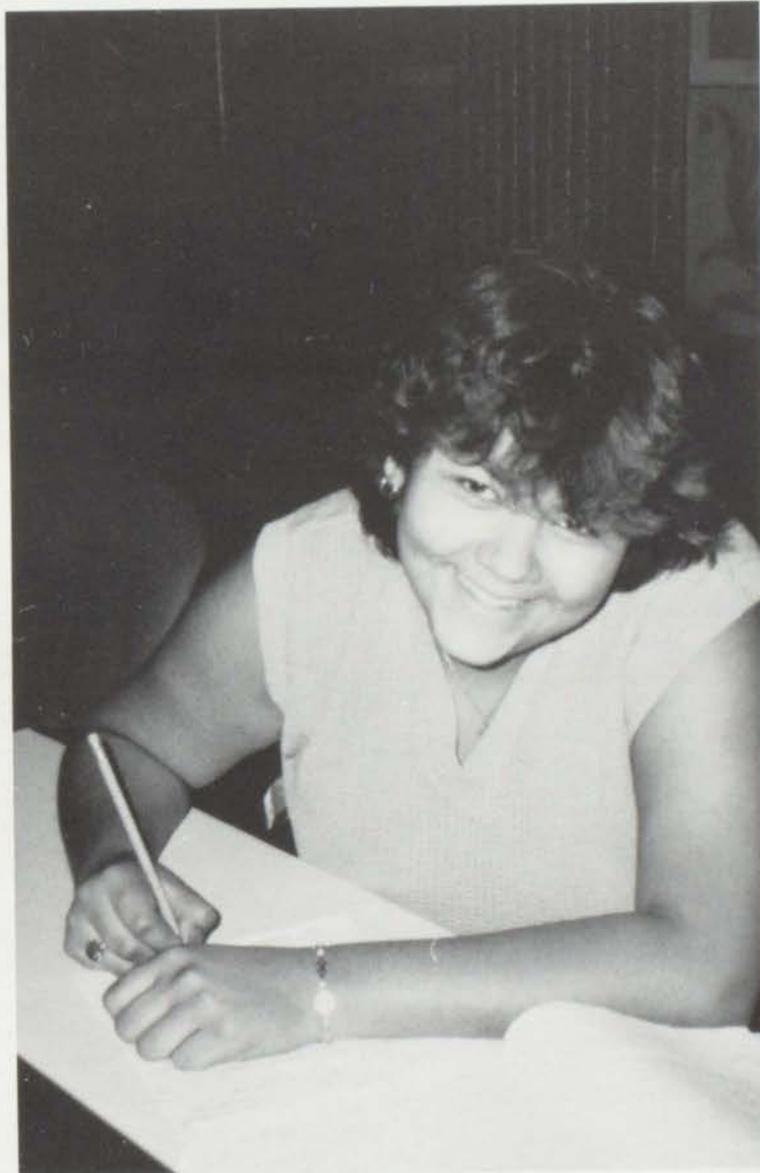

Considering the pros and cons of such volatile issues as acid rain, ground water contamination, and the impending bankruptcy of American farmers, this year's debate team was far from idle.

Students enrolled in debate portrayed roles not unlike those of United States Congressmen, vehemently stressing their opinions concerning today's problems. PHS debaters fared well in competition against other schools in the Northern Michigan and Central State Leagues. Novice and varsity competitors alike received honors, and many of the players were rewarded with varsity letters.

More prevalent than the actual arguments, however, were the countless hours of research devoted to their formulation. Both sides of each issue followed pre-set procedures and standards in preparing their cases. Those expressing affirmative views were charged with proving the harms of the problem, as well as showing that the present solution was ineffective. The opposition's job was not so simple. Refuting the pros arguments was their primary call, which they met by pointing out flaws in the proposed solution and advocating the current resolution.

The three-man swing debating team of Eric Bufe, Brian Geitzen and Steve Helmer placed tenth in the state. Letter winners Kay Mathers and Julie Raddatz were among the top speakers in the Central State League.

Researching for her role as a student conference representative is Cris Carey. Research and development of ideas proves to be the essential groundwork for any debate.

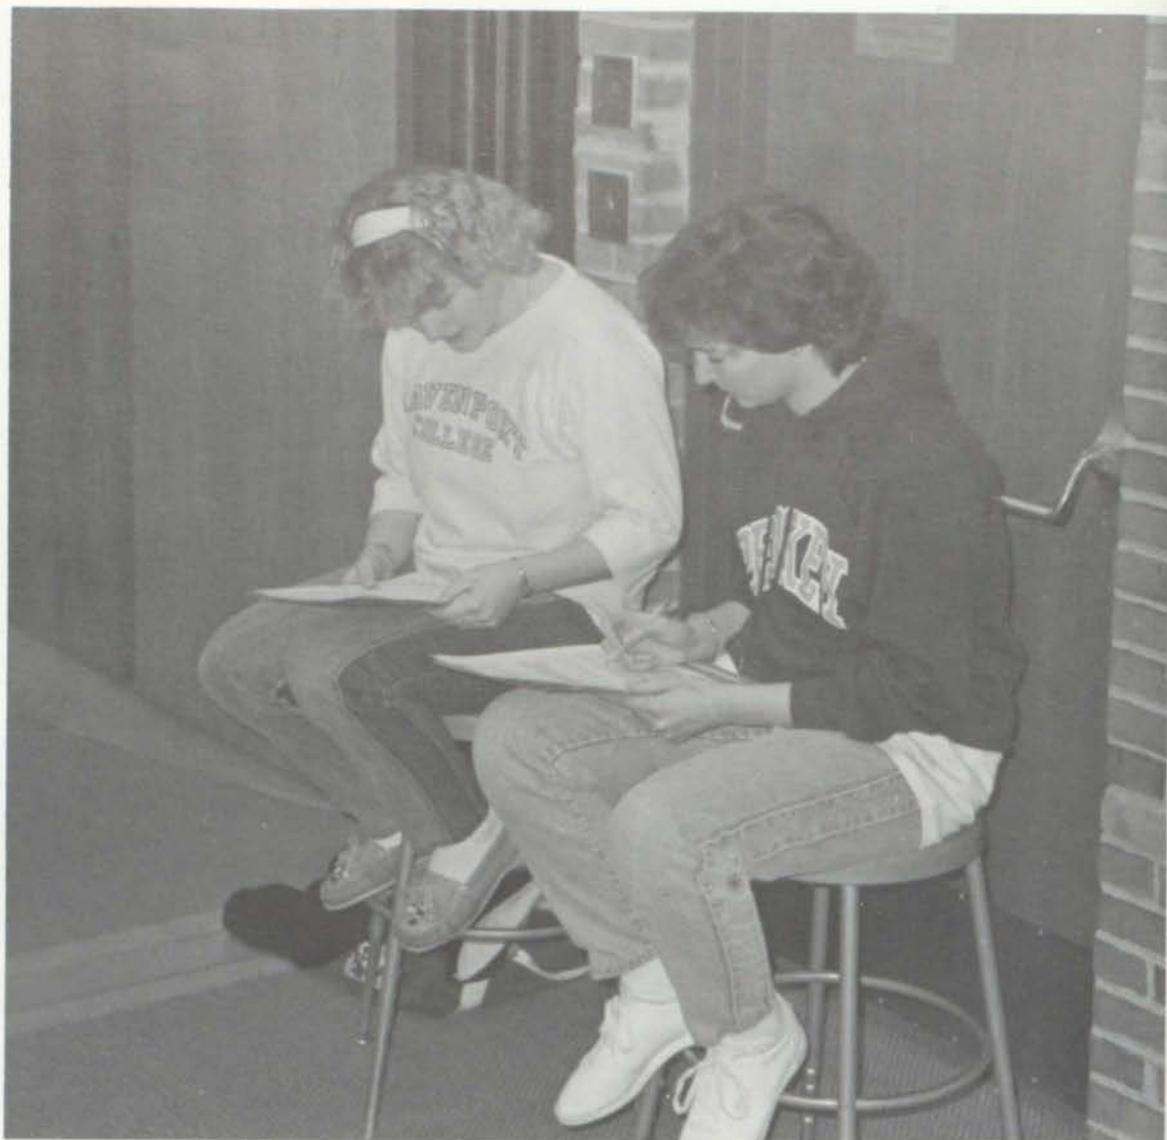

Rehearsing two teammates previous to a forthcoming debate are Dan Smith and Chris Raney.

Practicing in the auditorium was a familiar scene this year for Kim Page and Val Cook. They competed in the dramatic duo category and did well during the season.

Experience and practice are two words that describe this year's forensic program. The team was composed of thirteen seniors and seven juniors who gave the team good experience. The key to forensics however, was practice. Many hours before and after school were devoted to the class, and it paid off as the team had its best competitive season in recent years. "Practice was hard and at times Mrs. Howard may seem cruel, but she really helps you prepare for your performance in front of judges; replied Vickey Still.

The season's highlights peaked at state competition where twelve members from the team placed. Semifinalists were; Steve Helmer in extemp, Jerry Malec in humorous, Maggie Hall and Kristin Keiswetter in dramatic duo. Other finalists were Kay Mathers in Dramatic interper, and a multiple team of Erik Bufe, Dawn Krawczyk, Cheryl Gillis, Jennifer McDonnell, Natalie Crumb, and Tari Schlappi. The team's best performance came from Julie Raddatz who placed second in the state in storytelling. At State level the team collected enough sweepstakes points to place the team third in the state for class B.

Seniors played an important role in the team's success. Jerry Malec and Kyle Witt turned their usual excellent season as they finished their fourth year in the program. Sherri Dennis and Val Cook tried new areas in forensics as third year students. Second year seniors were Wendy Ferguson, Thresa Maxwell, Kim Page, Phil Redmond, and Cassie Whitmyer. Trying forensics for the first time as seniors were Lisa Satmary and Tami Sherphron.

Storytelling is one of Phil Redmond's strong areas in forensic competition. In only his second year of forensics, Phil placed to Regionals in storytelling and also did pentathlon.

Gathering materials for the multiple reading skit "Satin and Samshey" are Vickey Still, Wendy Furgeson, Cassie Whitmyer, Dawn Krawczyk, and Lance Boldry. This multiple later went on to state competition.

As an inexperienced staff, the journalism department of PHS set a goal of continuously working hard to produce the best Petosegan and best newspaper ever in '86.

The untrained staff, after working weeks in the textbook, quickly learned how to deal with copy, layout, ad sales, photography, and most of all, how to meet deadlines.

Not knowing what they were getting into, the students soon realized that journalism was one of the most demanding, time consuming classes offered at PHS.

"I expect my journalism students to be committed to producing quality publications," commented advisor Maria Nicholson. "That means meeting deadlines and taking the extra initiative to make sure that individual work is accomplished." She also commented, "In journalism, time means money; therefore, the most important rule is, 'Thou shalt not miss deadlines!'"

The responsibility of producing two quality publications was left to twelve people, with a few more pupils picked up in the second semester.

"Journalism is one of my better classes because it's like a job instead of a class," commented student Matt Pflieger. He also commented, "Like a job it demands dedication, time and responsibility."

In spite of their inexperience, the student worked continuously to produce seven issues of the Hill Street News (formerly the High-Life) while working on several projects for the yearbook at the same time.

Editors for the newspaper this year were Vincent Reusch and Brent Penfold; Cristan Allen, editor of the Petosegan, was the only experienced member of the staff.

CREATING UNIQUE IMAGES

Art students this year were enjoyable to work with. Most put forth quite a bit of effort," said Mrs. Margaret VanWagoner, art teacher at PHS.

With three general art classes and two advanced/studio art classes, Mrs. VanWagoner taught various aspects of art including drawing, watercolor, silkscreening, clay sculpture, fantasy pictures, papier mache, colorwheels, and album cover designs. Dawn Zerbe, Tracy VanLiew, and Paul Prickett all designed and painted murals in the art hall. Mr. VanWagoner also stated, "It was highly rewarding to see the unique design ideas the students came up with."

Art students also sold calendars that featured young animal drawings by exceptional students. By selling the calendars, Mrs. VanWagoner hoped to expose the students art work to the community.

PHS art students participated in two art shows. The first, in April, was the Youth Art Exhibit that featured art projects from all surrounding areas. The second, in May, was the year-end show only for students from the Petoskey School District. At both of the shows, Petoskey students entered album cover designs, clay sculptures, fantasy pictures, sketches, and silkscreened shirts.

Art Club was involved in two major projects. The first was painting spirit signs on store windows for homecoming and the second was meeting three times per month to finish the sports murals in the Middle School.

“Earning to do, doing to learn, earning to live, living to serve” is the motto of the FFA all over the country. PHS participants reached many goals and held many money making projects during the school year of 1985-86.

Some of the money making projects this year were the annual production of maple syrup and the selling of firewood, as well as the “Deacon Day” which was held both at the middle school and the high school.

In the fall, the club participated in the Fall Skills Contest which consists of five categories. These categories are horse judging, dairy judging, livestock judging, land judging, and forestry. Placing in the horse judging was Jennifer Buskirk while Amber Engler placed in the dairy judging. Seven PHS participants placed in the livestock judging. These students were Rick Bixby, John Daniels, Brian Frost, Ron Furgeson, Joe Hayes, John Laure, and Mike Vigneau. Placing in Forestry competition was Eric Francis and Mike Rosselit.

Competing in other contests, various students were recognized as outstanding students. These students were Amber Engler, for winning the silver medal in the district chapter public speaking contest; Abe Walter and Scott Miller for placing in the regional chainsaw competition.

During FFA week the club sponsored a teacher appreciation day, official dress up day, a deacon day and a hoe-down day in which they dressed like farmers. They also participated in a pie eating contest and bale-throw.

Early in February, the Agriculture building office caught fire and many files were burned. After the incident there was talk of possibly moving the building closer to PHS. Many hoped that by moving the building it might encourage more students to participate in the program. However, advisor Steve Maniaci stated, “Moving the Ag. building probably won’t affect the number of students who participate in the FFA program.”

FFA officers for the year were Amber Engler (president), Mike Rosselit (vice-president), Doni Kenoshmeg (secretary), Eric Francis (treasurer), Rick Bixby (reporter), and Jennifer Buskirk (sentinel).

V-CLUB RANKS DECLINE

One of the few accomplishments of varsity club this year was donating 200 dollars toward Athletic Banquet speaker, Doug Weaver.

Varsity Club accomplished little this year due to lack of participation from varsity athletes.

"The club was set up to reward varsity athletes but was never organized enough this year to achieve anything," said Don Dickmann, the co-advisor of the club. Although the club was again co-ed this year, there were not enough members to reach any of the club goals.

Selling popcorn was the club's only fundraiser of the year. The co-advisors, Don Dickmann and Scott Batchelor, were always at the basketball game concession even when students to work could not be found. There was only a handful of students that worked regularly including Kurt Hoffman, Anne VanDam, Dan Farley, Tom Overly and club president Jenni Blackhut.

The club had a number of ideas but never followed through to the final stages. These included getting signs for the sides of buses that said "Petoskey Football" or "Petoskey Girls Basketball." Other ideas were varsity club pins and the end of the year club trip.

The one achievement of the club was donating 200 dollars toward obtaining a speaker for the Athletic Awards Banquet. This helped in having Doug Weaver, the Michigan State University athletic director, speak to the athletes of PHS.

Varsity club strived to award such athletes as Anne VanDam and Steve Ross, the recipients of the Army National Scholar Athlete Award.

Special Olympics was organized to provide athletic competition for special education students. PHS students, along with students nationwide, were extremely involved in the Special Olympics program.

Students first participated in the Pete LeQuia Games, formerly the JayCee Track and Field Day, here in Petoskey. The games, held annually in honor of Pete LeQuia, are a reminder of Pete's inspiration to special education students. "Pete's interest in local Special Olympic activities was an inspiration to participants and other volunteers alike," stated Mr. George Armstrong, a PHS learning center teach. "He helped raise funds so special children could participate in sports competition here in the Little Traverse Bay Area and in regional and statewide events," added Mr. Armstrong. The students then advanced to the regional level, which was held in Traverse City and the state level, which was held in Mt. Pleasant. Mrs. Marge Hoekwater, another PHS learning center teacher, said, "No student really lost ... All were acknowledged as winners; never losers ... thus, every person received an award."

In addition to track and field activities, the Petoskey learning center encouraged many team and individual sports. They included year-round efforts to improve the health and fitness of children and adults.

Mr. Robert Sornson, department head of the learning center, has involved students in ski days, canoe trips, and a variety of other outdoor adventures to stimulate social and emotional growth, in addition to the academic skills taught in the classroom.

In their final victory picture, Terry Bernardyn, Ed Lyons, Mrs. Hoekwater, Lisa Blackburn, Mrs. Cool, Wendy Helmke, Amy Padgett, and Larry Giddings celebrate.

Among other state winners, Gretchen Hanners wins a gold medal for first place in the softball throw.

Students aren't the only ones who have to put extra time into their school work. Mr. Cole stays after on half-day holidays to work on his computer bugs.

Chris Carey looks on while Mr. Allen assists Kevin Cheadle with typesetting.

Mail must go through, even through the high school. Mail carriers take it as far as the office and Mrs. Bower passes it through to the teachers and staff.

OUR CHANCE

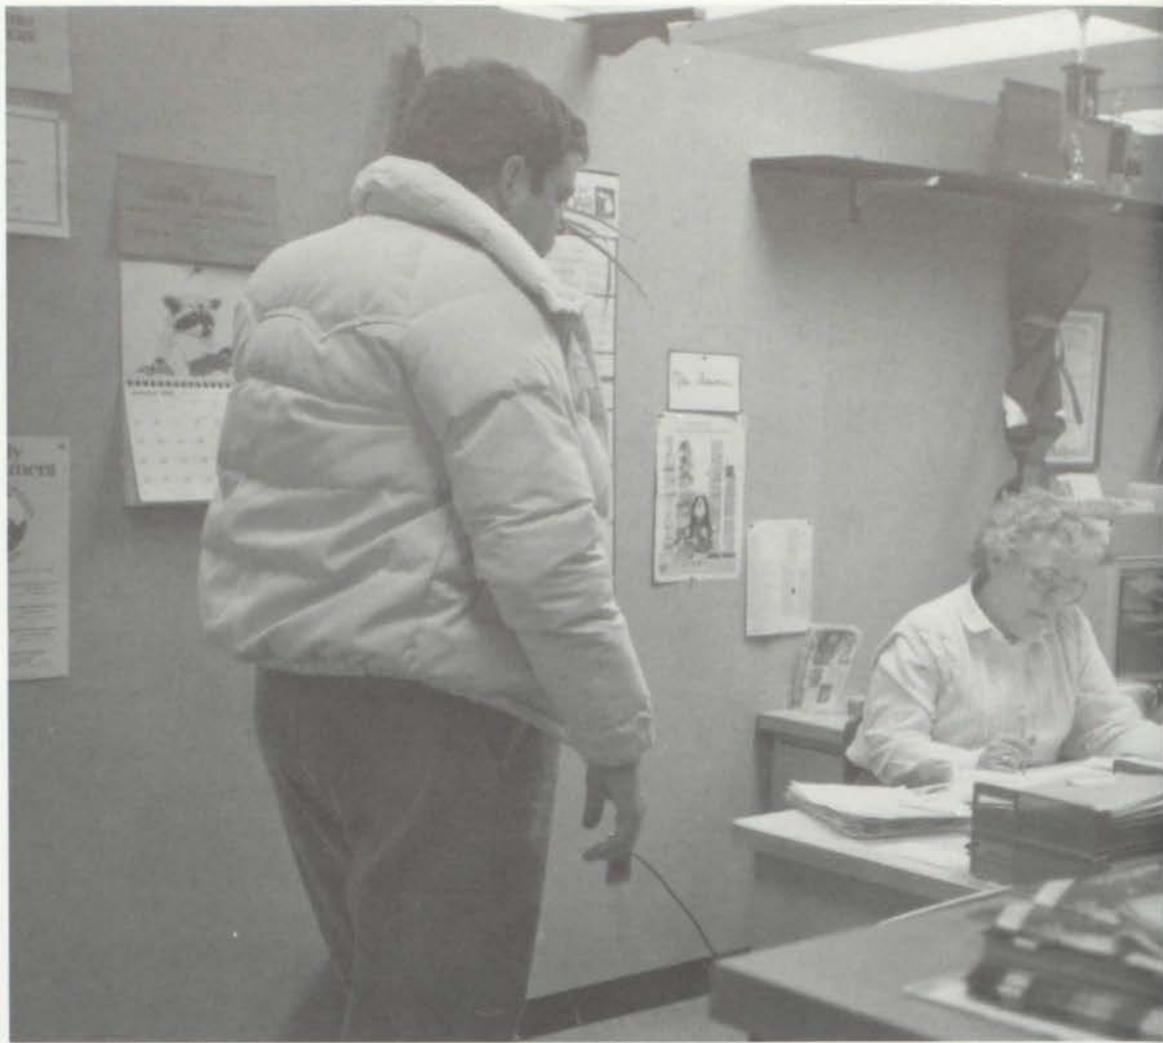

ACADEMICS

Learning was our responsibility. Faculty provided opportunities, but it couldn't force us to learn. Learning was the result of our motivation, our desire to achieve and use what was offered to us in high school. What we made of our lives was up to us. Faculty gave us "our chance".

Petoskey's board of education, chaired by Superintendent Dr. Franklin Ronan and President Daniel Chartier, tackled many administrative problems facing them this year. Open to the public, general meetings at the Spitler Building covered a wide variety of topics.

The proposed construction of a community swimming pool on PHS property last summer was approved and a committee was established to review the plan. Mr. Joseph Blachy, representing a growing group of supportive Petoskey citizens, presented the board with a plan to raise money for the project.

"Out of district" student tuition rates were established for Petoskey students residing outside the school district.

Adventure Education, an innovative program of learning was presented by John Heinzelman and Sheldon Buckmaster, teachers at PMS. The board and administration supported the program and agreed to pursue it further.

At a more visible level, PHS secretaries demonstrated the realization of the administrations' decisions. Secretaries' duties included answering phones, monitoring student attendance, corresponding to school mail, and typing countless assorted forms and papers.

Mrs. Laureen Lamkin, personal secretary to Principal Robert Doctor and Athletic Director Gary Hice, completed her 18th year at PHS last summer, whereas newcomers such as Barb Couture were here less than a year. "Petoskey High is a wonderful place to work. I've enjoyed working here with the teachers and students. It's always a pleasure to have someone recognize you out of school," said Mrs. Lamkin, who also served as advisor to PHS' student treasurers.

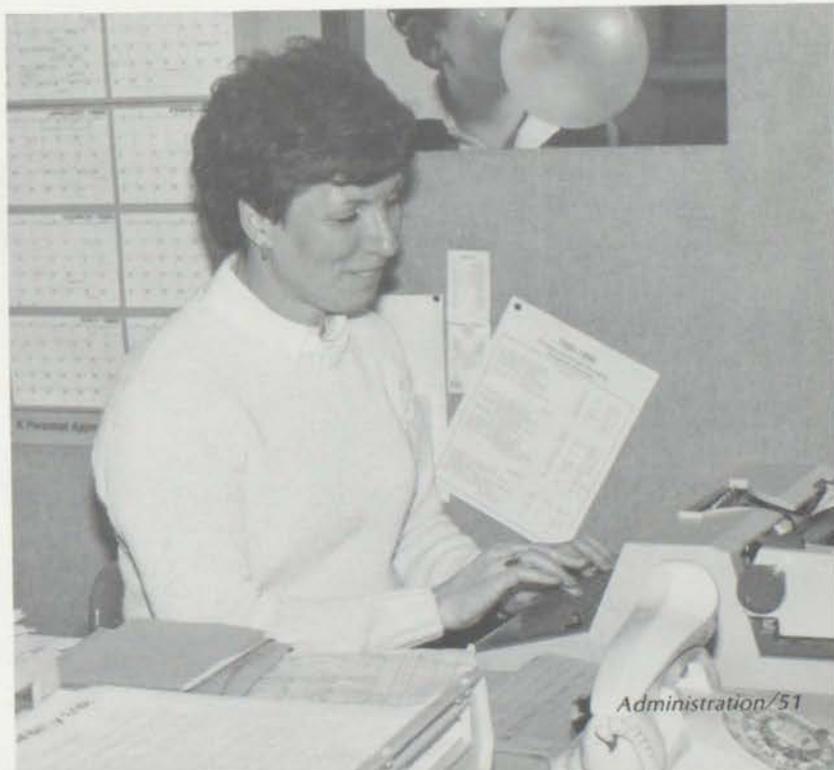

Veterans and rookies alike, the secretaries won the respect, admiration, and friendship of many students.

ADMINISTRATORS DRAFT PLANS

Mrs. Couture's irrepressible sense of humor and warm nature made her a favorite among office-going students.

Underlying the surface faculty of PHS there was another group of workers who rarely received recognition for their support. This group included the janitors, cooks and bus drivers.

Every day at 3:40, students stampeded towards the school doors in a mad dash for their freedom for the day. The janitors, however, were not so lucky. The first shift got here long before school started, while the second shift worked long into the night. Although the janitors worked mainly on maintenance, their job was certainly not routine. Janitor's jobs changed with the fads. During special events such as dances and pep rallies the janitors were expected to work extra hard helping to prepare for and clean up after these activities. As stated by one janitor, his job was "doing the necessary evils".

The cooks were perhaps the bravest workers in the school. Day after day they faced the onslaught of hundreds of starving students. The cooks arrived as early as 7 am, opening the kitchen and cooking the food. Although they each had individual jobs to do, such as preparing the salads or working the cash register, teamwork was very important. Each month there was a scheduled menu of the food to be prepared. It was, however, the cooks who gave school lunch a variety by offering the ala carte and special treats for the holidays.

Another group of workers which had to rise long before the sun was the bus drivers. At 7:30 am on stormy mornings, when most students were still in bed hoping for a snow day, the buses were already on the move. Not only did the bus drivers take students to and from school, they also took science classes on field trips, athletes to events, and spectators to many away games.

With the introduction of department heads last year, physics and math teacher Don Dickmann was chosen to represent PHS' mathematic interests. Attempting to create more efficient communications and to organize and express the needs of teachers, department chairs, Mr. Dickmann among them, gave an hour of their time each school day to meet their goals.

"Department heads are more aware of classroom problems," stated Mr. Patchkowski, Algebra instructor. "It makes the department more cohesive," he added.

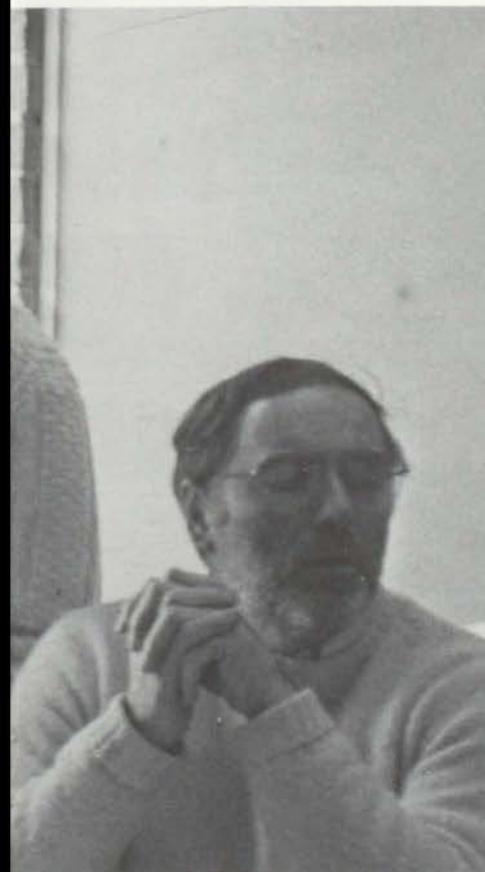

PHS' mathematics department was a mixture of the young and old, the experienced and the rookies. Veteran staffers like Mr. Swenor and Mr. Aspenleiter imparted their knowledge alongside "youngsters" such as Mr. Hewitt and Mr. Batchelor. This broad range gave students heavy exposure to a variety of teaching styles.

Whether behind a desk, in front of a chalkboard, or on the playing field, PHS math staff excelled in their various fields.

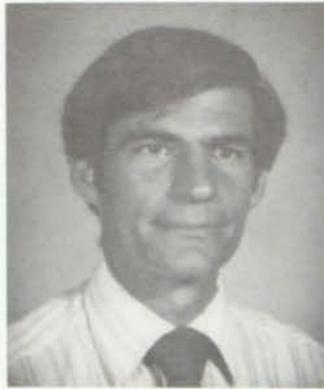

For many, being a teacher meant more than just pointing to a blackboard, as boys track coach Mr. Aspenleiter knows all too well.

With a dozen classes available, PHS offered more vocational directions than any other school in the district. Students from seven area schools, including Boyne City, Charlevoix, and Harbor Springs were bussed to Petoskey daily, returning to their hometowns after two hours of vocational training.

Even with the loss of Petoskey's Building Trades program several years ago, the school still provided an incredible array of vocational courses from which students could choose. Offered in two hour blocks, classes ranged from the clerical, such as Information Processing, to the clinical, including Health Services and Cosmetology. Industrial skills like auto mechanics, welding, and electronics troubleshooting were taught alongside more traditional ones, such as plant and animal science and soil management.

Acting as a liaison between the teachers and the administration, welding/machine tool instructor Lance Talcott performed the duties of Vocational Department Chairman.

"I have the best job in this entire school system, because I see things from the teacher's perspective and the administration's perspective also. It allows me to have insight into our educational program that most teachers and administrators never get," said Mr. Talcott. Working as chairman a full year before other department heads were chosen, Mr. Talcott has also been PHS' vocational director since 1978. "Petoskey's vocational program is fairly comprehensive in nature. Our equipment and facility is reasonable — not extravagant — but sufficient enough to meet our needs," he added. Mr. Talcott also pointed out that the sending schools represent an essential part of the program and that without them, the classes would inevitably be discontinued due to low enrollment.

Featuring an unprecedented and highly specialized teaching staff, vocational courses at PHS gave students an alternative to the traditional academic routes towards success. Vocational Education provided the means through which those with potential could attain their goals. Regardless of whether they wanted to fry steaks, adjust carburetors, or repair computer circuit boards, the training students needed was at their disposal.

After a one-year hiatus, Chef Daunter again donned his hat and returned to command PHS' commercial foods class.

VOC-ED OFFERS DIVERSE PROGRAM

ENGLISH OFFERS COURSE VARIETY

Without knowledge of the English language it would be difficult to survive in America. Realizing this, PHS required three English credits for graduation. To accommodate for this large amount of credits, the high school offers a larger English department than any other academic course. This year it grew by yet another class as American Literature was added to the curriculum.

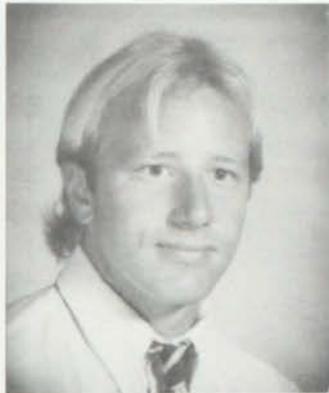

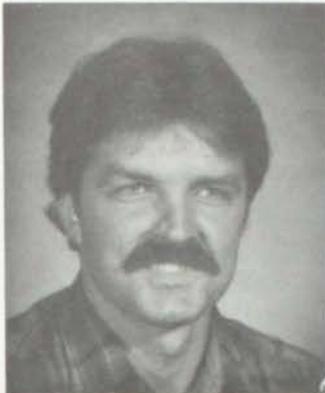

Mrs. Pater, veteran English teacher, said of the English department, "I've always thought it was a strong department. It offers the kinds of subjects that do the kids the most good." Mrs. Pater went on to say that the English teachers are all very qualified in their specific fields and as a whole Petoskey has a very tight and organized English department.

Besides adding more English classes, the school also began a program which would help match individual students with classes better suited for them. This program required all tenth grade English students to write a five paragraph essay. The essays were then graded anonymously and depending on the combined score, their teacher would recommend them to certain classes. This didn't require the students to follow the recommendation; however, most felt it was quite beneficial.

Another branch in the English department, was the foreign language classes. French and Spanish were offered this as were French and Spanish clubs.

Reading a piece of classic literature to his tenth grade English students is Mr. McCullough.

As technological advancement are made, more and more biological and scientific discoveries are also made. From the telescope to the microscope, man has found ways to see and work with science which were never before possible. PHS offered the chance to use some of this technology and learn about science through their many classes.

Showing Patricia Hinsley some new techniques in the dissection of fetal pigs is Mr. Newsted.

Although science is such a large part of the school's curriculum, only one credit is required. Maria Nicholson, teacher of Honors Biology and Physiology said, "It's interesting that PHS only requires one credit of science to graduate even though most students take three and four credits. I feel that perhaps we should increase the requirement."

SCIENCE COURSES KEEP PACE

Although new discoveries and theories mark significant events in science, this year an event occurred which resulted not in the discovery of new life but in the end of seven lives. In February the space shuttle Challenge exploded after lift-off. This event particularly touched the hearts of many teachers for two at PHS had applied to the Teachers in Space Program.

OURSELVES

UNDERCLASS

We found ourselves at the bottom looking up. The time we spent trying to make the grades was countered by the time spent trying to fit in. There were the drivers licenses and first jobs ahead of us. Getting through seemed a difficult climb, but in the meantime we found "ourselves".

Freshmen

At the beginning of the year, the Freshmen class was greeted by the cheerful face of Bigboy. Bigboy was the upperclassmen's way of saying "welcome to the High School".

Bigboy and other warnings did not dull the spunky attitude of the "new kids on the block". While keeping a low profile, the class was determined to participate and let itself be known. Starting early in the year the class showed that they were determined to be accepted by their participation in sports, clubs and other activities. "The '86 Freshmen class was outstanding in participation in almost all sports, clubs and other important activities", stated Pete Vandenbrink, President of the class.

Showing hope for the future were Todd Shomin in freshmen football and Frank Brunner and Jeff Mann in basketball. Other prospects for the future included Pete Rossi, the only freshmen on the varsity soccer team, and Tom Tolbert the only boy freshmen on the varsity ski team. For the girls, Kristen Kieswetter and Pam Bufe showed that they could dominate the girls' ski teams in future years.

Spanish, French and International clubs also largely involved freshmen, as well as debate and forensics. Kristen Kieswetter was part of a dramatic duo that went to regional competition for the forensics program.

Reactions to the high school differed from being a "totally new experience", to "almost the same as the middle school or Saint Francis".

"The school was a much faster pace than the middle school, but once the year progressed, I got used to it", added Pete Vandenbrink.

While not being able to drive, basketball and football games as well as dances were the main social events the class attended. Dances offered the chance to stay out late on a Friday night and was usually a great time for everyone.

With three more years of high school ahead, the class of '89 looked toward the future as both rough and promising.

Taking a test out in the hall, Heidi Keiser concentrates on a good grade.

Excelling in both sports and clubs, the freshmen class as a whole also excelled academically. Most freshmen could type faster than their older peers.

Sophomores

Sophomores embarked on a second year of high school with a little more experience under their belts.

In their hall, there were brilliant colors above the new lockers. The J.V. football team, primarily sophomores, had been practicing and had already adopted the motto "Hoggs Rule". The year moved along quickly and before they knew it, the sophomores had won the float contest at homecoming game. The class of '88 also became the co-champion of the powderpuff football game.

The year progressed past football season into the winter sports. The J.V. basketball team started its season under the supervision of Coach Dave Brines. Sophomores were also in varsity ranks in volleyball, and the boys and girls ski teams. Sophomores also boasted the champion broomball team. During the winter, members of the class of '88 could be seen frequently on the ski slopes at Boyne Highlands, Nubs Nob and Boyne Mountain. Those who did not partake in skiing could be seen sometimes schussing on the seat of a bumpjumper at the Winter Sports Park.

Attending dances became popular with sophomores. Their favorite dances were, of course, the theme dances. To raise money for the sophomore class, the class of '88 held its own Psychedelic dance. Students dressed as long hair hippies and moved to some "classic rock."

In mid-February a new fad gained birth. Suddenly Wacky Whippers started to appear in the hands of sophomores. Those were rubber cords that stretched over a long distance. The Wacky Whippers slowly died out like any passing fad.

Soon after the end of the Wacky Whippers, basketball climaxed for both the J.V. and the class. The J.V. basketball team ended out its season 8 and 6 in the conference and 8 and 12 overall. In class basketball, the sophomores never made it off the ground, losing their first game to the seniors.

As the sun began to shine, the sacks began to be kicked. Summer was only a short stretch away and summer was Hacky season. The familiar sound of a Nike, Adidas, or Reebok connecting with a sack could be heard across the courtyard before school, at lunch, and even occasionally after school.

Although Sophomores appeared to have an easy year, that was not quite the case. They were presented with the responsibility of driving and even owning cars. However, the major problem of the class was money. The class came into the year with a rather small account. But under the leadership of President Amy McMullen, Vice-president Maggie Hall, Secretary Kay Mathers and Treasurer Jenny Srigley, the class expanded its funds dramatically through a stand at the Historic Festival, magazine sales, Valentine's day heart sale, the Psychedelic dance and a jelly bean count.

All in all, it was a successful year the sophomores would not soon forget.

Leaders of the class of 88 were President Amy McMullen, Vice-president Maggie Hall, Secretary Kay Mathers and Treasurer Jenny Srigley.

Many sophomores were enrolled in eight Physiology or Chemistry. Brent Penfold and Tricia Hinsley demonstrate the art of dissecting a fetal pig.

Juniors

For the juniors, the 85-86 school year brought few major highlights but many small-scale achievements. The class of "87" took the laid-back approach but learned to take on new responsibilities of preparing for higher education.

The Junior Class also had the responsibility of sponsoring the Homecoming and Prom dances. These dances wouldn't have been successful if it weren't for the fundraisers. The juniors raised almost three thousand dollars through a candy sale and other fund-raisers.

Out of school, many junior boys went four-wheelin' on Hill Street but not in trucks, instead it was on Skateboards. A familiar sight would be a group of the junior boys thrashing on a curb or a sidewalk surrounding the school.

In school, juniors found themselves exploring higher levels of education than ever. Instead of socializing in the pit, they were more interested in cramming for the chemistry or algebra test the next hour.

Although the class of "87" is the smallest in the high school many of it's members are proud of it. President of the junior class John Waldvogel stated "In my opinion the class of "87" is and will be an important part of PHS, and will be remembered for a long time."

Working on his mechanical drawings in vocational drafting class is Jason Eppler, one of many juniors who took part in vocational classes this year.

Computers are the newest trend at PHS. Steve Koskus and other juniors are already into advanced computer classes, preparing a program.

School spirit reached a new high at PHS. At a home basketball game, fans hold up signs to cheer on their team.

Pinning the opponent with shoulders flat is the goal; obtaining it is the hard part as Eric Whinnery discovers.

Giving his all, Mark Riley stretches to reach the ball during a soccer game against Traverse City.

Staging the layup in her mind, Vicki Still approaches the basket as the Boyne City team blocks.

During winter, skiing is by far the biggest pastime at PHS. Scott Rea shows his skill.

SPORTS

We worked hard at learning, but harder at playing. Sports were our speciality. At least once a week PHS was involved in some sports event. Even though victory was not always handed to us, we gave it all we had; we gave sports "our best".

CHEER-LEADERS ENCOURAGE SWITCHING ON THE SPIRIT

With much enthusiasm, the cheerleaders aroused school spirit for both the football and basketball seasons. They toughed it out through the snow, rain and cold weather of fall. Much happened during the 1985-86 season. Six varsity cheerleaders went to camp at Central at the end of July where they learned chants, cheers, how to arrange pep assemblies and how to raise money.

Both varsity and J.V. won first out of 35 teams at a competition in Kalkaska during January. Like many other groups, the cheerleaders sold M & M's to raise money for camp. They also purchased new uniforms. Penny Kane was the new coach. "I felt she was very helpful," stated Heather Hall. In addition, against Charlevoix." The the cheerleaders sponsored a pep assembly for a basketball game against Charlevoix." The cheerleaders really boosted support for us with the pep assembly," said varsity basketball player Don Proctor.

Varsity football cheerleaders Michelle Gerke, Jenny Griffen, Wanda Long, and Sherri Dennis take time out to pose with football player Don Proctor.

Rowdiness abounds in varsity football cheerleaders Lisa Daniels, Wanda Long, Sherri Dennis, Heather Hall, Jenny Griffin and Michelle Gerke as they stop to pose at a game.

Preparing herself for varsity, J.V. cheerleader Lisa Lintz cheers on the J.V. basketball players.

YOUNG MEMBERS

Watching his great putt roll toward the 10th hole at Bay View Country Club is Mike Ketchman.

Steve Likins puts power into his swing as he drives his ball to the next hole.

Having only five seniors on the squad and the number one golfer a sophomore, the varsity swung to a 5-4 season record.

Northmen golfers were led by sophomore Kirk Shanley with a 43 stroke average and senior Mike Ketchman, close behind with a 46 stroke average over nine holes.

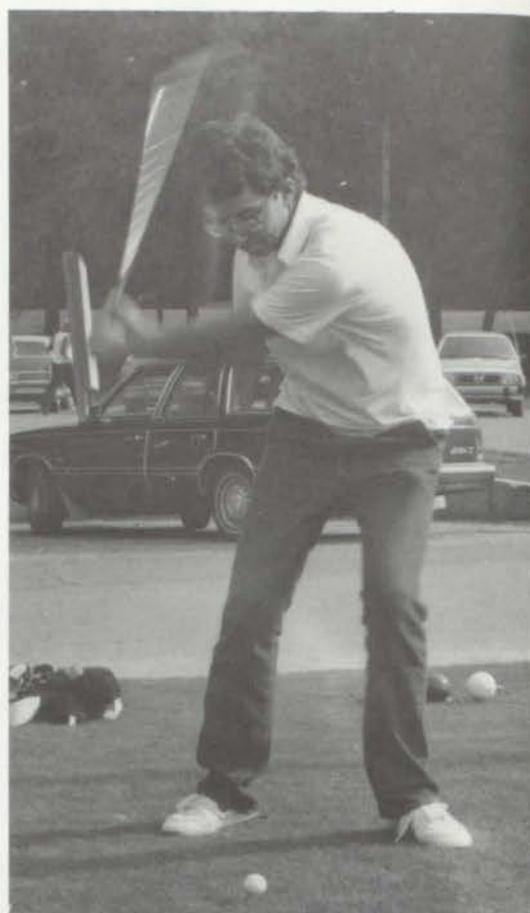

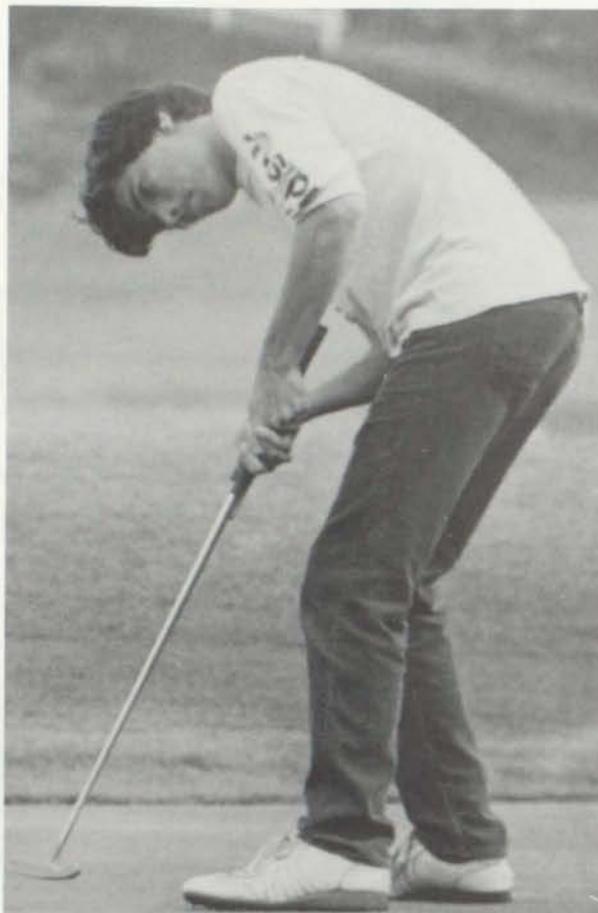

Due to poor shooting at the beginning of the season, the Northmen lost their first few matches. But the young Northmen bounced back by working extra hard on the driving range.

According to coach Lee Milner, "As the season moved on, the long, hard work on the driving range began to pay off and our scores improved."

The Northmen won their first match over Harbor Springs 183-184, a thrilling victory.

The highlight of the season was the conference meet at Boyne Mountain. There the team captured third place out of seven teams which included Cheboygan, Boyne City, Charlevoix, Gaylord, Rogers City, and Sault Ste. Marie, all strong teams. Petoskey finished with a team total of 344 points, led by Mike Ketchman shooting his way to an 81 over 18 holes.

"A key for us at the conference was that we stuck together, keeping our scores close. We performed as a team, not as individuals," stated Kirk Shanley.

At Regionals in West Branch, Petoskey swung its way to a 9th place finish, with a team total of 382 points. Top finisher at Regionals was Shanley, who was chosen the team's most valuable player.

The team did not achieve its goal of matching last year's effort, but the young team shows great potential of being a great team in the future.

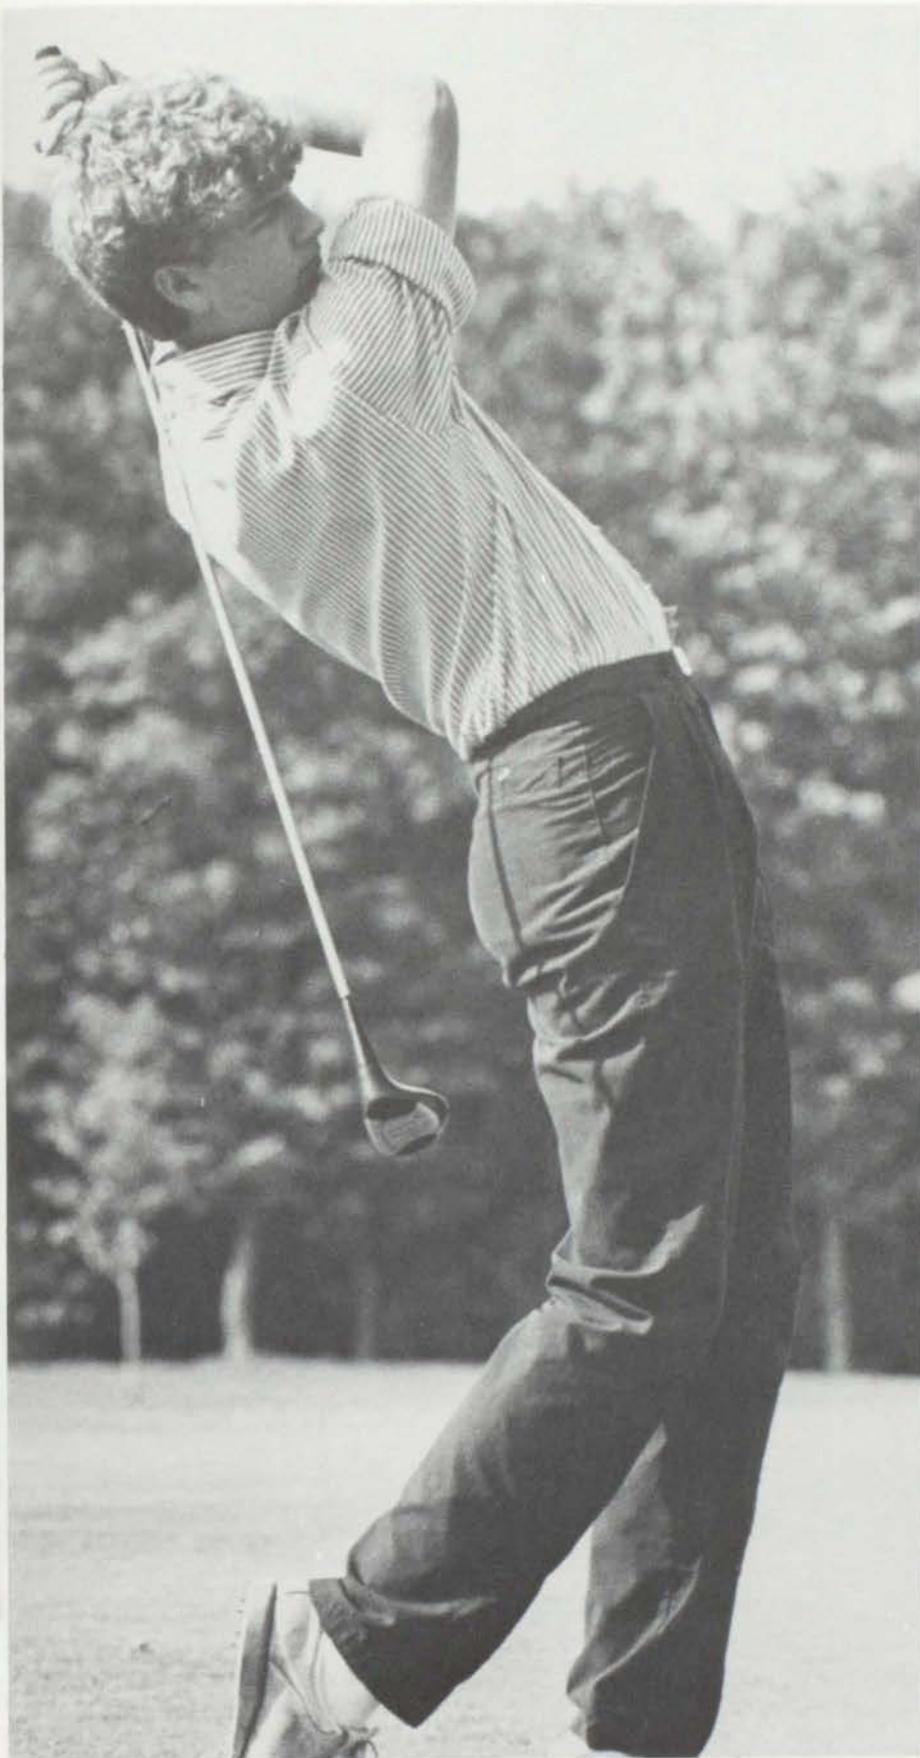

"Next season should be good if the freshmen and sophomores work hard at golf in the summer," stated coach Milner.

The team had seven freshmen out and three sophomores. However, the team will lose valuable seniors: Jeff Faust, Steve Johnston, George Ketchman, Mike Ketchman, and Steve Likins.

Change was a key to victory for the northmen this year. At the beginning of the season the whole offensive attack was altered because of the newly added pass offense which came to be known by teammates as "Air Proctor". By the time the opponents started to figure out the routes of travel, the team had flown via airway to the front of the conference with a 5-0 record.

"Air Proctor" was then grounded by a season ending injury to top receiver Mike McPeak. Then came the losses against undefeated Gaylord 13-0, state runner-up St. Ignace 14-6, and a strong Cheboygan team 28-0. In the final game, the team came back by winning big over Boyne City 38-8.

The team was less serious off the field. Scorpions and AC/DC could be heard at intense levels in the locker room. Nicknames such as Gome and Hymee were also common. Even such moments as watching the game film from the previous week became humorous as players would laugh about an error made in the game. One thing was sure, this team had fun as it had the best season in four years.

At the end of the season the team enjoyed a Central Michigan football game and a banquet at Staffords. Voted most valuable players were: Earl Frantz, Scott Rosevear, Joe Haggerty, Don Proctor and Steve Ross.

Making his first reception, Tim Nelson adjusts well from quarterback to split end, after the tragic accident to leading receiver Mike McPeak. Nelson ended the season as the second leading receiver.

J.V.'S DETERMINE TO DOMINATE

Surrounded by Vikings, sophomore Paul Lover breaks a tackle for a first down.

Improving throughout the season, the J.V. football team was determined to show its skill. Despite some tough competitors the mix of 25 sophomores and 13 freshmen dominated the season with an impressive record of 6-2-1.

Although defeated by the Cadillac Vikings and the Gaylord Devils, the Northmen were able to tie St. Ignace Saints once and win all other conference confrontations during Fralick's J.V. coaching season.

The team, coached by Mark Fralick and assistants Glen Morse and Dwayne Swenor, was perhaps the most improved, competitive team in J.V. Northmen history.

Overall team strategy for success was to score big and to dominate the game as they did. As a climax for their strategy the team hit harder than the previous game and made fewer mental mistakes.

Behind Fralick's philosophy of "We work together as a team and improve throughout the year," the J.V. Northmen did just that. The team controlled the conference by consistent, and determined team effort. By the end of the season, most players felt prepared for varsity level action and anxiously anticipated next fall.

Captains of the year varied all year depending on the previous game played. Gary Wilson was selected as the J.V.'s most valuable player. Chosen for most improved players were Rob Hudson and Richard Pratchard.

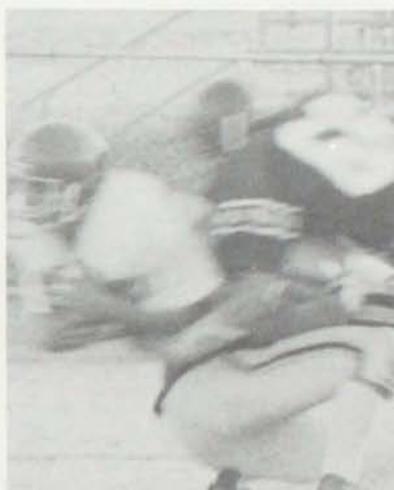

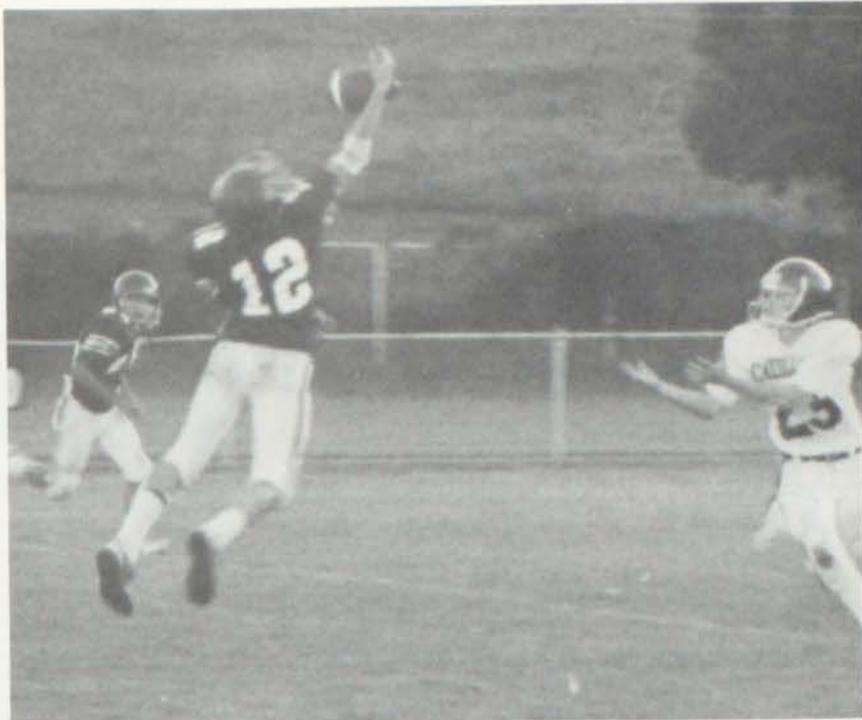

Discussing the play, MVP Gary Wilson declines the penalty against Grayling. (The Northmen defeated Grayling 27-6.)

Setting up a scoring attempt, Mark Riley executes a pass toward the net.

With a sharp eye, Khoa Nuygen plans his next move against an opposing Alpena player.

Stopping a possible scoring drive, Steve Conrad steals the ball skillfully.

Boasting a 10-4-3 record the Northmen soccer team became a power with which to reckon. Beating such top class A rivals as Alpena and East Grand Rapids, the Northmen controlled their conference.

A key factor to the success of the Northmen was exchange student Robin Haas from Germany. Scoring 16 goals made Haas top goal scorer as well as an fine all-around player.

Coach Batchelor stated, "Highlights of the season have been winning the Petoskey Tournament and beating Alpena and tying Traverse City twice."

In their final year, outstanding seniors were Jim Russel in goal; offensive strength Khoa Nguyen; and defensive influences Steve Conrad and Paul Prickett. Since much of the competition was downstate, that meant a great deal of travel for the team. On these trips, players were housed by opposing team members. This proved to be a rewarding experience for many players. Some experiences encountered were meeting new people with different lifestyles and just weekends away from siblings.

In just three short years as a varsity sport, the Northmen made themselves a state power.

With an outstanding save, goal-keeper, Jim Russell proved throughout the year to be one of the best goalies in the state.

TEAMWORK WINS

With three starters and eight returning lettermen back, the experienced Northmen had high hopes for a successful season.

At the team's first meeting they set goals for the upcoming season which included beating Charlevoix and Cheboygan, winning the conference, and taking the class B District. But their most valuable goal was to play as a team. This teamwork paid off as just about every one of their goals was accomplished.

"I felt we had a successful season, although we didn't finish number one in the conference which was our goal. However, we did knock off Charlevoix twice", said Senior point guard Steve Ross.

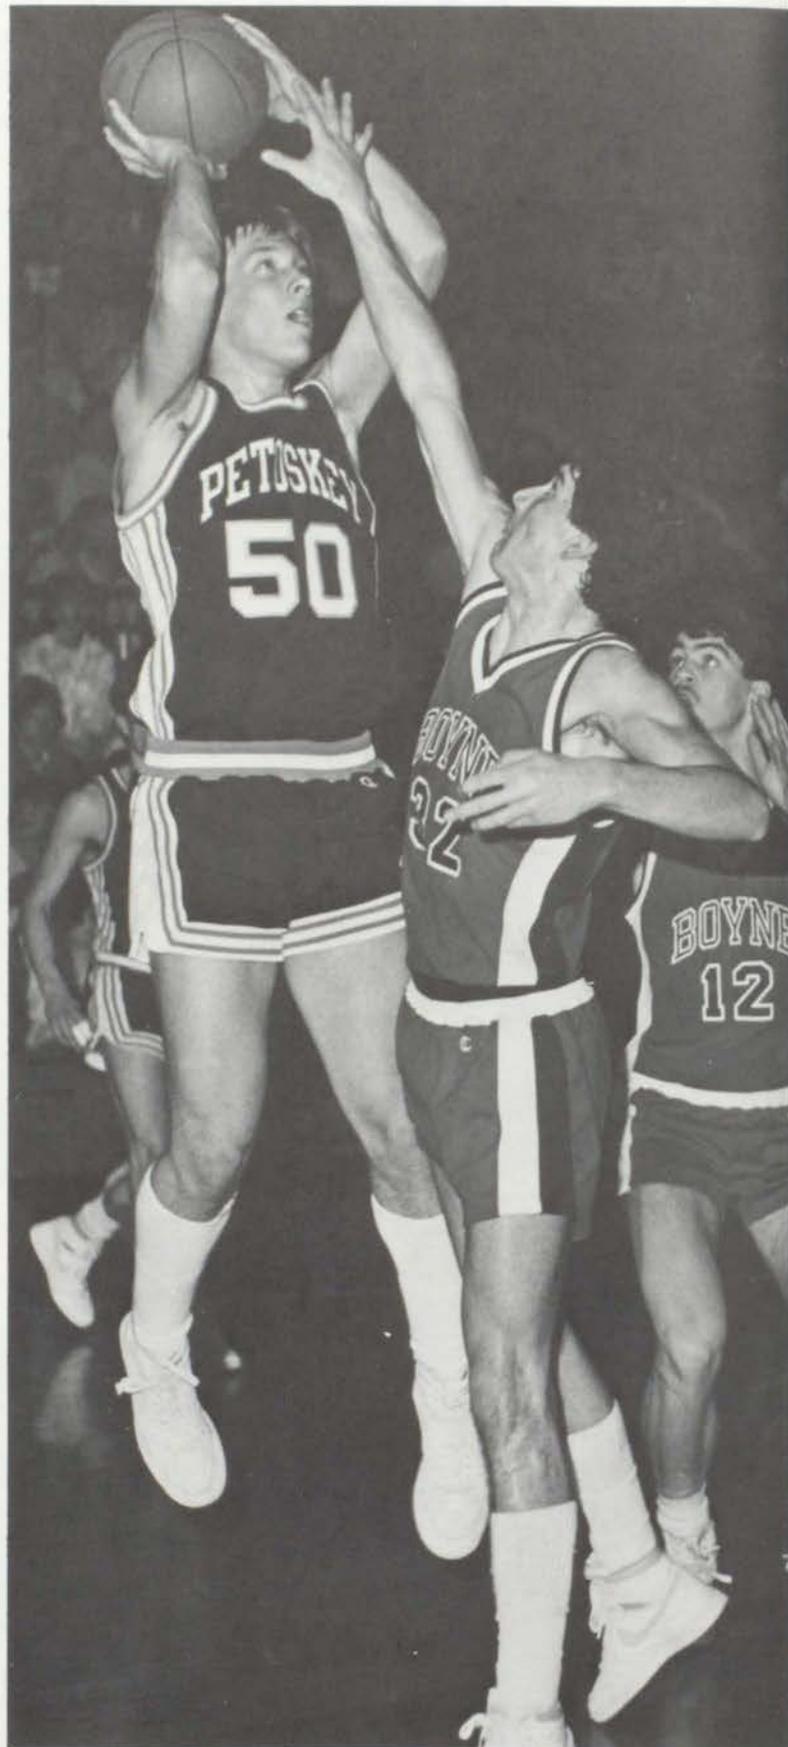

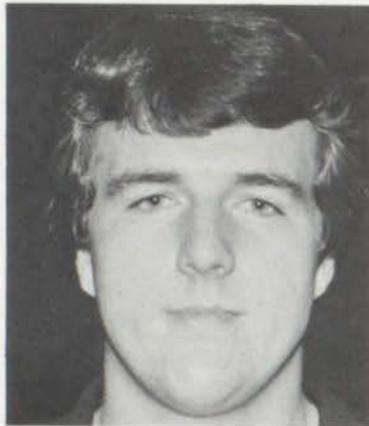

Petoskey finished with a 10-4 record and a second place tie with Charlevoix in the MHSC. During regular season PHS beat Charlevoix and Alpena twice, and split with a good Gaylord team. At the Districts the Northmen had to face Gaylord in the semi-final. Gaylord was up by 9 points with 1:53 left. But a comeback by PHS put them in overtime. The Northmen broke it open by hitting two quick buckets and went on to win 52-49. In the finals, however PHS fell to conference champ Cheboygan.

"We had a great group of guys that were willing to work hard and have fun at the same time", stated Senior Steve Mann.

Four of the five starters received recognition for their contributions to the team. Ross and Mann (who was the team's leading scorer) made the All-Conference most valuable team. Seniors Dennis Hewitt and Don Proctor received honorable mention. Hewitt also made All-State honorable mention.

With good concentration, junior John Waldvogel makes this shot in the key against the Ramblers.

Six-six senior Steve Mann was a three year veteran and two time captain on varsity. He finished his career as Petoskey's 3rd all-time leading scorer and was selected to the MHSC most valuable team.

DEDICATED TO WIN . . .

Frank Brunner makes this left handed shot look easy as he scores two more against Rogers City.

According to Coach Wilson, teamwork and defense win games.

"I was real pleased to work with some fine young men. They played good team defense, and each player improved as the season went on", said Wilson.

The freshmen team completed a 10-6 record, that featured two big victories over Cheboygan, and one over Charlevoix. Frank Brunner and Dean Rasmussen were the leading scorers, while Jeff Mann controlled the boards.

This group of freshmen proved what it takes and the benefits to be dedicated and hardworking. Their goals were to move on to the higher levels.

With good concentration, Darren Fettig makes another one of his team leading free throws.

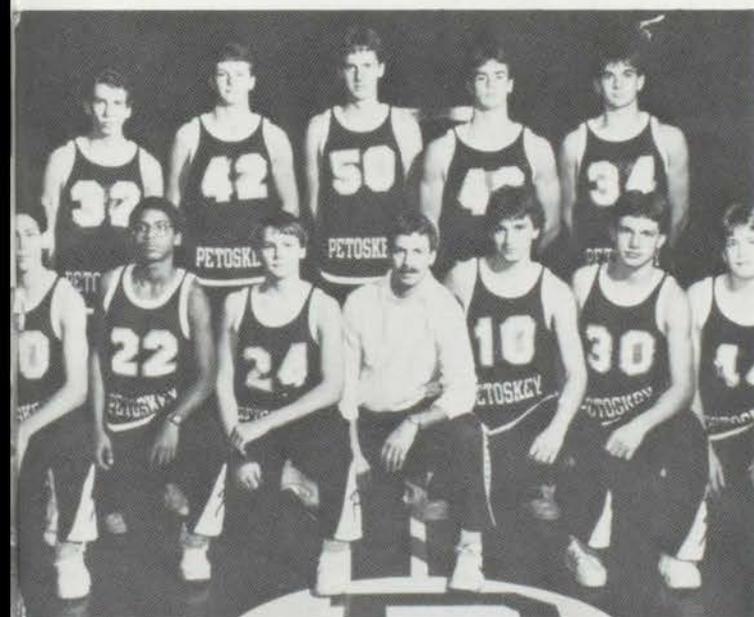

Under rookie mentor Dave Brines, the 1985-86 J.V. team had a very productive season. A great deal of improvement was seen from the season's start to its end.

The team finished with an overall 8-12 record, and a 8-6 record in the conference. Tracey Piehl and Ted Festerling were leading scorers combining for 23 points per game. John Mansfield hauled in an impressive 178 rebounds for an average of 9.9 per contest. Darren Fettig was the team's leading foul shooter hitting 81 percent at the line.

"This was a fine group of guys, with whom I was proud to be associated. They accepted criticism in the manner intended and played hard throughout the season," stated Brines.

While concentrating on the basket Dean Rasmussen drives hard to the hoop for "two".

B-BALL TEAM

At the start of the 85 season the girls basketball team had the potential to be a good, experienced team, and one of the top contenders in the conference. But as the season was underway, the girls ran into a big problem. They couldn't seem to stay healthy through the whole season, being plagued with colds, flu and sprained ankles.

"Over 75 percent of our games were played without the team at full strength," stated Coach Bill McClutchey.

The girls ended the season with an 8-13 record. In the conference they finished 5th with a 6-8 record, beating St. Ignace, Grayling, and Boyne City twice. At the Districts in Cheboygan, the girls bowed out early, losing to Sault Ste. Marie. Conference champion Cheboygan was the winner of the District tourney.

Highlights of the season were that senior Brenda Kolinski, and junior Jill Mathews both set individual school records. Kolinski had a great year, leading the team in scoring, rebounds, and free throws. She was 2nd in the conference in scoring with 15.6 points per game, earning her a spot on the Most Valuable Player Conference Team. Kolinski was 93 for 124 from the foul line which is a conference record. She was also the team's leading rebounder, getting 12 per contest.

Mathews also had an impressive season, averaging 13.2 points per game, 5th in the conference. She also broke the school record for most steals in one game, getting 10 against Onaway. These statistics gave her a spot on the Honorable Mention Conference Team. Kolinski and Mathews combined a score of over 400 points this season.

Unfortunately, this wasn't enough to compensate for the team's problems.

Driving to the basket for another score during the Rogers City game is senior Brenda Kolinski.

Sophomore Claudia Morford eyes the basket while driving for 2 points against Onaway.

Inexperienced was the one word that described the '85 J.V. girls basketball team. The girls had a rather frustrating year, but never gave up in trying to find winning ways.

With ten freshmen and only four sophomores, the girls completed the season with a 4-16 record. The young team beat Kalkaska, Onaway twice, and Grayling.

Sophomore Sherry Maxwell lead the team in scoring and rebounding. According to Coach John Heinzelman the freshmen group did a fine job and earned some valuable game experience for next season.

"The team record is not an accurate description of this team. Many of the losses were only by a few points and could have gone either way. Our best games were against Boyne City and Onaway; both were real team efforts. We're only losing four sophomores and with next year's freshmen group, we should be a much improved ball team," said Heinzelman.

Highlighting the season was a 1st place at the Rogers City tournament, where they went undefeated. The team was led by sophomore Lynn Dwan, who was selected MVP for her efforts. Top offensive player was sophomore Jacqui Bost, and top defensive player was Amy McMullen.

This years captains were Bost and Sandy Pennell.

"I was glad to assist a great group of girls. They all tried so hard to make this season a success", stated Coach Edie Pearsall.

VOLLEYBALL FACES TOUGH CONFERENCE

Girls volleyball team didn't quite match the efforts of last years conference champ team. But with the dominating seniors the team placed 3rd in the conference and placed in three of four tournaments.

The girls finished the season with a 21-11 overall record and a 3-3 record in the conference.

"We had a well rounded team. We started out strong, but sickness early in the season slowed us. But we certainly put up a good fight all the way through", stated coach Mary Johnson Foster.

A 1st place at the Inland Lakes Invitational highlighted the season. The Northmen also placed 3rd at Gaylord, and 5th at St. Ignace. Most Valuable Player honors went to Sharon Hickman. All-Conference selections were Hickman, and Michelle Meengs. Honorable mention went to Tina Dixon, Mary Lou Foster, and Teresa "Maxy" Maxwell.

Seniors Linda Schmoldt and Teresa Maxwell proved to be real team leaders. Schmoldt was the teams number one server and was number one defensively. Maxwell was the offensive leader, as Hickman helped with the setting duties.

With ten girls graduating, the team will be rebuilding next season. But there are some talented players coming up from the j.v. program.

BOYS CAPTURE RESPECT

Mike Sullivan, skies his way to a first place victory at the Boyne Highlands Invitational.

Being called "Has Beens" and being compared to last year's record breaking team, the boys ski team prepared to prove themselves.

Beginning at the first practice two dominant skiers appeared to lead the team, Dave Kutcipal and Mike Sullivan. Kutcipal completed the year by taking double 1st in conference competition and a 2nd and a 4th at regionals, and finished the year by taking a 6th place at the state meet in the giant slalom. Sullivan recorded a 3rd in slalom for the conference and a 6th during regional competition and finished the year by taking a 6th during in slalom at the state meet. "Dave and Sully were the mainstays of the team and are firmly placed in 1st and 2nd positions; after that there is an abundance of raw talent", stated Coach Jim McCullough.

The other top skiers such as Tim Sattlemeire, Tom Tolbert, Paul Rossi, and Kevin Geitzen rounded out the top positions, with great support coming from alternates Steve Koskus, Dirk Wylie and Rodney Mays. "Geitzen and Mays both gave strong support throughout the year. Koskus and Wylie both could have skied 1st team for any organization in the state," added Coach McCullough.

By placing two skiers in the top ten positions in the state the boys team proved that they were strong state skiers and that people shouldn't judge a book by its cover.

YOUNG

With her medal-winning 8th place in regionals, Jenny Srigley proved the girls were strong.

With the average grade of the girls team being 9.8, most thought it would just be a learning year and the team would not amount to much, but the girls team proved many wrong.

By taking a 3rd in regional competition many people were amazed at the young talent. Jenny Srigley took a medal — winning 8th place in regionals out of over 100 racers which proved that the girls team was not unimpressive. Following Srigley at regionals were Carin Cutler with a 18th, Dana Frank with a 19th, Kristen Keiswetter with a 25th in giant slalom and Colleen Flynn and Pam Bufe topping out the top 30 with finishes in slalom and giant slalom.

“All the girls skied well for the varsity and all made strong improvements throughout the year. Also improving as alternates were Missy Theriault, Sjana Kishigo and Trisha Verhelle,” stated Coach McCullough Possessing the talent needed to win, the girls ski team proved to all disbelievers that they could win and proved it by taking a very challenging 3rd place in the region.

Taking 19th out of 102 skiers, proved Dana Frank to be tough competition.

Preparing for the daily practice, everyone sets out their equipment for the ride over to Nubs Nob.

Dominating the Northland, the varsity wrestling team was destined to accomplish many team goals and overcome personal records.

Despite tough rivals, the 13 Northmen became serious contenders for the Class B State Championship with an outstanding record of 14-0.

Defeating the strongest team in the conference and moving their MHS wins to 29 consecutive match victories the Northmen became the second undefeated team in school history since 1976.

"They're a very well balanced team with several seniors and the best team that I have coached in my seven years at PHS," comments coach Ray Arthur. Arthur has been coaching since 1979-80.

The team broke and tied numerous conference records during the season as it held the record for most tournament pins (22) and most tournament championships (5). It also tied the record for most tournament and conference placers (12). In districts the team bears the record for most champions (3) and most district placers (5). They also hold the record for the highest district team finish, third out of 19 teams.

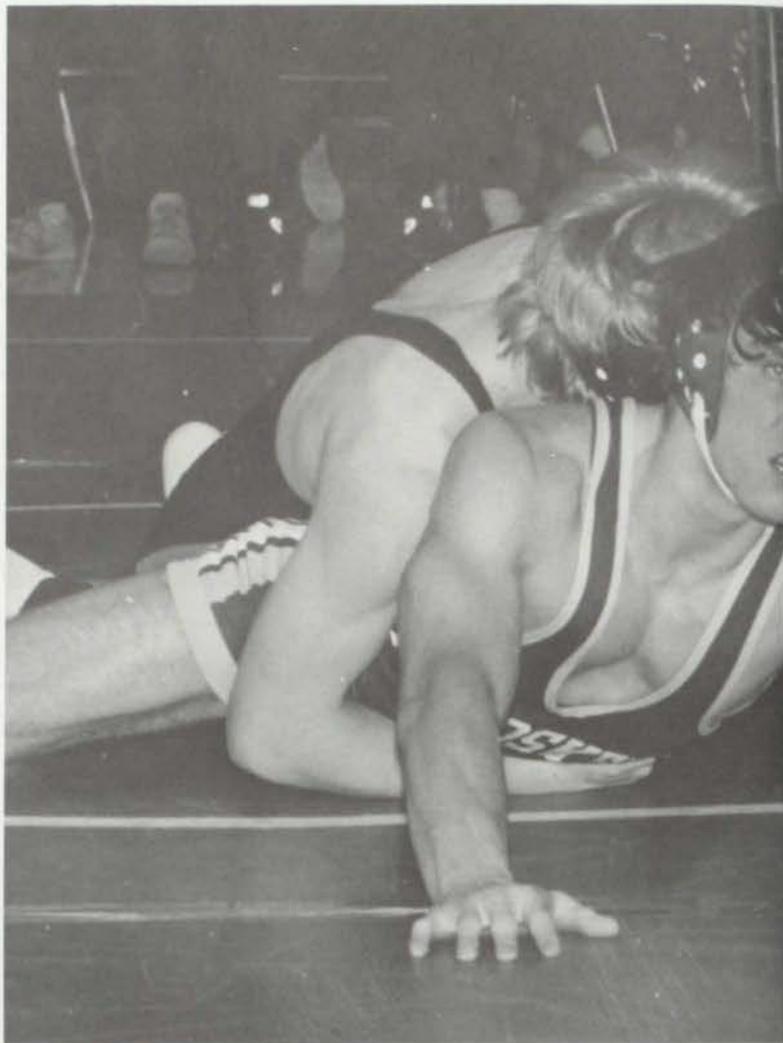

In the seven years that Arthur has coached, the Northmen wrestlers were undefeated at home meets. They were also four years consecutively unbeaten in MHSC dual meets since 1983, and have 35 consecutive MHSC dual meets victories with four consecutive MHSC team championships (1983-86).

In conference competition four seniors of the 13 varsity wrestlers became conference champs. These four were Chris Howse (119) Adam Richie (167), Joe Haggerty (185), and John Parker (HWT.). At districts junior Eric Whinnery and seniors Richie and Haggerty each took first place.

Seniors Adam Richie and Joe Haggerty, co-captains, ended their wrestling career at PHS with Richie placing 7th in state competition. Richie finished the season with 112 career varsity wins while Haggerty finished with 84 career wins.

Trying to escape from his opponents hold, senior Kevin Graves works his way back up to his feet against an opponent from Traverse City St. Francis. Petoskey won 48 to 27.

This year was a record breaking season for the Northmen baseball team. They finished with a 24-5 overall record including Districts and Regionals. This is the most wins ever in the school's baseball history. Also the Northmen went the farthest any team has ever gone in post-season. After beating the SOO and Oscoda in Districts, the Northmen headed down US 131 to Grand Rapids for Regionals.

The Northmen were on a roll from the start, winning their first 14 games before losing to a strong Traverse City team. The last game of the regular season against the Soo determined the MHSC championship. Petoskey dropped both games and therefore split the conference title with the Soo. Both teams finished 14-2 in conference play.

At Regionals, the Northmen took the first game in a thriller against Fremont, 3-2. In the bottom of the seventh and the score tied, senior Tim Nelson blasted a solo homer for the victory. In the final game the bats got hot and so did the defense, as the Northmen rolled past Alma 5-2.

The Northmen were headed back down US 131, this time all the way to Kalamazoo for the state finals.

"We weren't expected to even go this far, but we were the underdogs and showed what we could do," stated Coach Barry Cole.

When it came time to play baseball, the team got serious. But the team also liked to have a lot of fun — even Coach Roy Harvey. Team spirit was high, as the players were cheered on by teammates in the dugout.

"We all stuck together, and we were all real close. That's what made us a good team. We played team ball, kept our heads up, and encouraged each other all the way through," said senior Travis Sadowski.

Girls softball team won the last eight straight games of the year, to take second place in the conference behind Gaylord. The Northmen finished with a 10-5 conference record and 11-11 overall.

"Things were slow at the start of the season, but when we got our momentum we were on a roll," said Coach Judy Ruunovara.

Brenda Kolinski proved to be a real team leader, as she was the leading hitter and pitcher. She and Jill Mathews batted .450. On the mound Kolinski was 10-8. Senior Karen Fettig was the team's top fielder.

The girls highlighted the season by defeating league leader Gaylord twice. But Gaylord proved to be too strong when districts rolled around. Petoskey met Gaylord first game, but this time Gaylord took revenge in a 10-7 victory. But despite getting beat early in the districts, the girls had an overall good season. Many of the games played went right down to the wire and that made it exciting.

"It was a lot of fun this year, especially at the end of the season. We were winning all our games and kept moving up in the standings; that's what made it fun," stated sophomore Jenni Stephenson.

This year Judy Ruunovara was assisted by Mr. Eric Greyerbiehl, who began teaching English in Petoskey last fall. He has had several years of coaching experience. This was the first year the girls have had a male coach.

The team lost four girls to graduation.

BOYS TENNIS WINS

Decked out in Converse high tops and MSU hat was Nick Hoffman who did well in the No. 2 singles position last year as a sophomore.

Just the right mix of talent led the boys' tennis team to a winning record this season. In dual meets Petoskey went 6-3 and took fifth at regionals. The team also won a four-team home tournament.

Dominated by sophomores and juniors, the team's sole senior representative was Mike Snyder. Rookie Ken Butcher was likewise the only freshman recruit. Two years of competition added needed depth to the fledgling team, according to coaches McClutchy and Champion.

With a young team, much practice was needed. Many hard hours were put in at both the high school courts and Little Traverse Raquetball Club. Many of the team members didn't settle for tennis as a spring sport. They could be seen at many of the local tennis courts in the community year round.

With a new look of confidence (new uniforms) the girls tennis team was what Coach Karen Langs described as "the best team ever." Primarily consisting of veterans, Coach Langs also said the team had experience and refinement. "Together the team has been great." She also added that they have "Come a long hard way," and that there was "a lot of team effort."

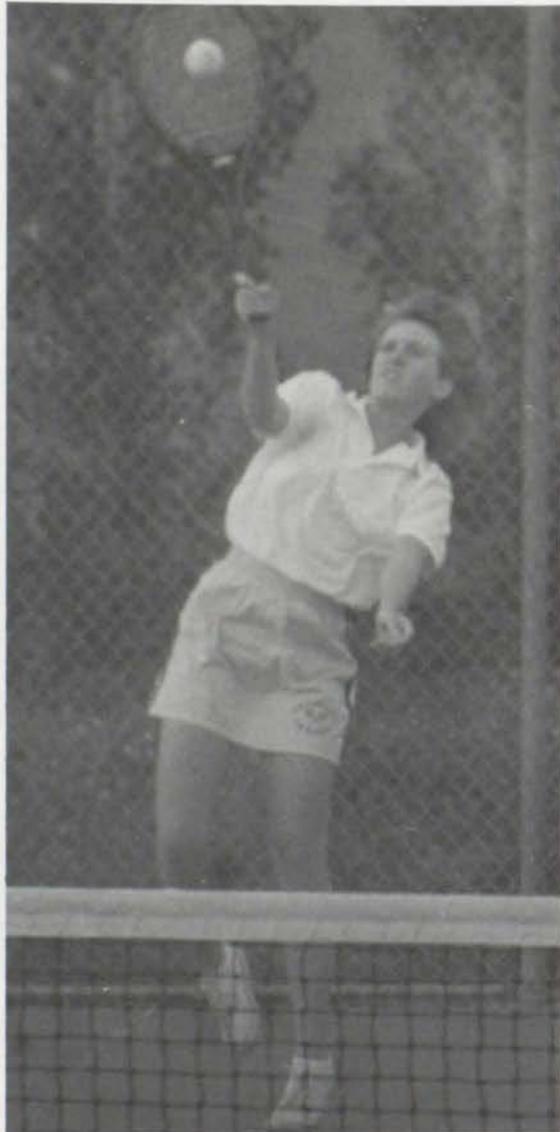

Practice began for the girls in mid-August and continued daily from 4 to 6 on school nights until the state Competition. The team completed the season with a record of 9 and 2, losing only to the number one ranked Traverse City.

In Saginaw, where the regionals are played, the team placed second. From there every team member qualified for the State finals, where the team placed tenth.

Senior Jenni Blachut qualified for "All-state for the fourth year in a row," which Coach Langs described as the most memorable event of the season. She said that Jenni was probably the toughest opponent against the state champion.

Team effort was an important part of the season. Coach Langs felt each member gave her all to make the girls' tennis team a winning one.

Experience was a key to the success of the boys and girls cross country teams. The boys returned six of seven varsity runners. Leading the boys team was captain Kurt Hoffman plus seniors Dennis Hewitt, Dan Farley and four-year letter winner, Alan Kalchik. The girls brought back its top four runners Anne VanDam, Heather VanDam, Phyllis Pemberton and Amy McMullen, and also returned was Tonya Bennett who had missed the previous season due to illness. The girls team captain and number one runner was Anne VanDam.

The girls team had a strong season winning the Ludington Invitational, Petoskey Invitational, Claire Martin Invitational, conference meet and went undefeated in dual meets. Anne VanDam had another great season following a powerful junior year taking first place in the conference for the third straight year.

The boys ended up with a seven-win and one-loss record in dual meets. The boys one loss went to Charlevoix, class C State runnerups. The boys team won the Petoskey Invitational and third in the conference. Top runner was Alan Kalchik.

Both teams, under the coaching of Don Dickmann, qualified for the state meet. For the boys it was their third consecutive year at the state meet while the girls were making their second state meet appearance in a row. While the boys finished fourth, the girls placed the highest any team from Petoskey had ever placed with a second in the regional meet.

At the state meet, the girls finished 14th behind the 26th place finish of Anne VanDam. The boys finished 18th in a field of 27 teams and were lead by junior Tom Overly at 48th place.

Although the track team only lost two teammates from the previous year, the team did not do as well as expected.

Before the season had begun, the boys had already experienced many losses. The biggest loss was top performer Alan Kalchik. In the sprints, the team suffered the loss of Tye Swenor. Adam Richie didn't return to the team after a knee injury. Losses during the season included Pete Spencley with a broken collarbone, along with high jumpers Adam Slowinski and Pete Hoffman.

The boys made do with what they had. In the season opener, they beat Boyne City but were defeated by Charlevoix. At the second meet, the boys defeated Cheboygan in the last event.

The boys then went to the Gladwin Invitational. The top finisher was Andy Wilkins with a second in the 2 mile. The boys then went to Newberry where the top finisher was Earl Frantz with a first place. The team came home with the runner-up trophy. At the Traverse City relays the team had their worst performance with the highest placing in the four mile relay with a fifth. They took first place in the meet due to no other teams in their division.

The next meet was at Gaylord. They came in second of a field of five teams. The team then went north to St. Ignace where they took third against St. Ignace, Gaylord and Cheboygan. Next came the biggest meets of the year.

The team travelled to Gaylord again for the Regional meet. The only State meet qualifier was Tom Overly, who took a second in the 880 run. Other medal winners included the two mile relay team of Dan Farley, Tom Overly, Kurt Hoffman and Mike Waldo, who took a sixth while Dave Farley also took a sixth in the two mile run. The last home meet was the Petoskey-Kiwanis Relays where the boys performed well and took second in the class B division. The final meet was the Conference meet where the highest placer was Tom Overly with a first in the 880 run.

Over a week later Tom Overly went to the state meet. He placed fourth in his heat of the 880 run and twelfth overall with a time of 2:02. Tom said, "It was a good experience and I hope it will better prepare me for next year."

Greg Andrews stretches out to clear 11 feet after vaulting opening height at the Regional meet.

Tom Overly finishes the last leg of the two mile relay in sixth place and will soon run the 880 that will take him to the state meet.

Girls Track managed to have a qualifier in states and win an invitational despite many injuries.

When the season started, the team looked for a bright season. However, injuries began to surface. Karen Schuch was sidelined with appendicitis while Phyllis Pemberton left the team at mid-season due to a stress fracture.

Once the season began, the Girls looked past their drawbacks to win. Under the coaching of Scott Batchelor and Maria Nicholson and the leadership of fourth year letter winners Anne VanDam and Heather Hall, the team did this, while winning their first two meets against Boyne City, Charlevoix, Grayling and Cheboygan.

At the Gladwin Invitational, the team placed seventh with Heather Hall taking a second in the 100 m dash and Anne VanDam finishing third in the two mile run. At Newberry, the girls relay teams placed well without Heather Hall running. In the Gaylord Herald Times relays, the girls took third place overall.

Regionals were held May 19th at Gaylord. Heather Hall ran well, taking second in the 100 and 100 m dashes qualifying her for the state meet. Anne VanDam just missed states in the two mile.

At the Petoskey-Kiwanis relays, the girls team showed their perseverance by placing first in the 3/4 mile medley, mile medley and mile relay leaving them in a tie for first place with Gaylord.

Conference was very disappointing as Heather Hall and Anne VanDam were unable to compete. Coupled with other injuries, the team only scored six points and finished last in conference.

At the state meet, Heather Hall never qualified out of preliminaries but ran very well.

Displaying a few of many trophies awarded to Petoskey teams are, Scott Rosevear master of ceremonies, Mr. Gary Hice athletic director, Jenny Blachut mistress of ceremonies and Doug Weaver who was the guest speaker at the banquet.

ATHLETES CELEBRATE SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Gover 250 people attended the forty-first varsity awards banquet this year. Chairman of the banquet Athletic Director Mr Gary Hice kept the mood light with humor. The master of ceremonies Scott Rosevear and mistress of ceremonies Jennifer Blachut also joked about various members of the coaching staff and athletes.

Doug Weaver, Athletic Director for Michigan State University discussed high school athletics and how similar feelings of sports prevail no matter whether in Petoskey, Goshen Indiana where he grew up or even Michigan State. Mr. Weaver also encouraged athletes to go on to higher levels of education and not fear the large world of college athletics.

Three awards were presented at the banquet to outstanding senior athletes. The first was to honor the memory of Mark Leshner who tragically dies in a swimming accident last summer. The award was entitled the 100% award. This was given by Jerry Martinchek who had known Mark all 17 years. The award was presented by Mark's sister Lisa to a senior football player whose qualities were most like Mark's. John Parker was named the recipient for his true love of football and his dedication to the sport.

National Scholar Athlete Awards presented by the Army Reserve honored Steve Ross who was all conference in basketball and football and upheld 3.48 grade point average. He lettered in baseball, football, and basketball each year as a varsity player. Anne Vandamm was also honored for being a strong state competitor in both track and cross country and excelling in academics to a 3.77 grade point average.

Sixteen sports were represented at the banquet with speeches given by selected team members, highlighting each season and crediting parents and coaches for support. Although the banquet lasted for three hours, parents, coaches, athletes and administrators didn't seem to mind. "It didn't seem like it was that long because the speeches were so funny," added Eric Beer.

Giving some advice to honored athletes is Gary Weaver. Athletes are, Anne Van Dam, Steve Ross and John Parker.

Congratulating the athletes for a successful year is Athletic Director for Michigan State Doug Weaver.

Handing the 100 percent award to John Parker is Lisa Leshner. Lisa is the sister of Mark Leshner for whom the award was dedicated.

Representing the football team are Earl Frantz and Steve Ross. Earl congratulated each member of the football team and did a "Heck of a Job."

OUR PLACE

SENIORS

We had made our way up the ladder, rung by rung. We had faced difficult relationships, whether with friends, parents, or steadies. We had overcome challenging quizzes and exams in tough classes, such as Chemistry and Algebra II. Finally, after the climb to the top, we knew we had reached "our place".

Seniors

Senior year had finally arrived. It brought with it many new challenges, but it also brought many fun times. Difficult classes like Senior Lit., Honors Advanced Biology, Physics, Algebra II, Trig., and Advanced Algebra plagued many seniors with homework nightly. Most seniors, however, knew the benefits of taking such classes. "It's interesting that we're at a point in our education where all classes interconnect and we're putting what we learn to practical use," said Brent Phillips.

Still some found time to pull off jokes such as putting Big Boy on top of the school during the first week, playing games like broomball against the sophomores, and having toga parties, where a toga and grapes were a necessity. "We went nuts just for the sake of going nuts," commented Joe Haggerty.

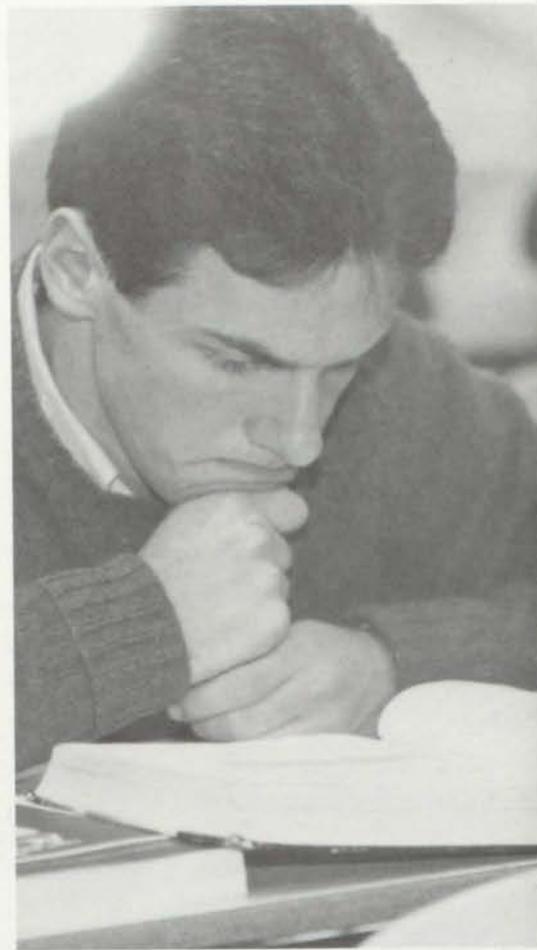

Another high point of senior year was the election of the Homecoming king and queen, Scott Conti and Anne VanDam. "When I first heard I was real nervous. I was that way till it came to walking out onto the field. Everything went great after that," stated Scott Conti.

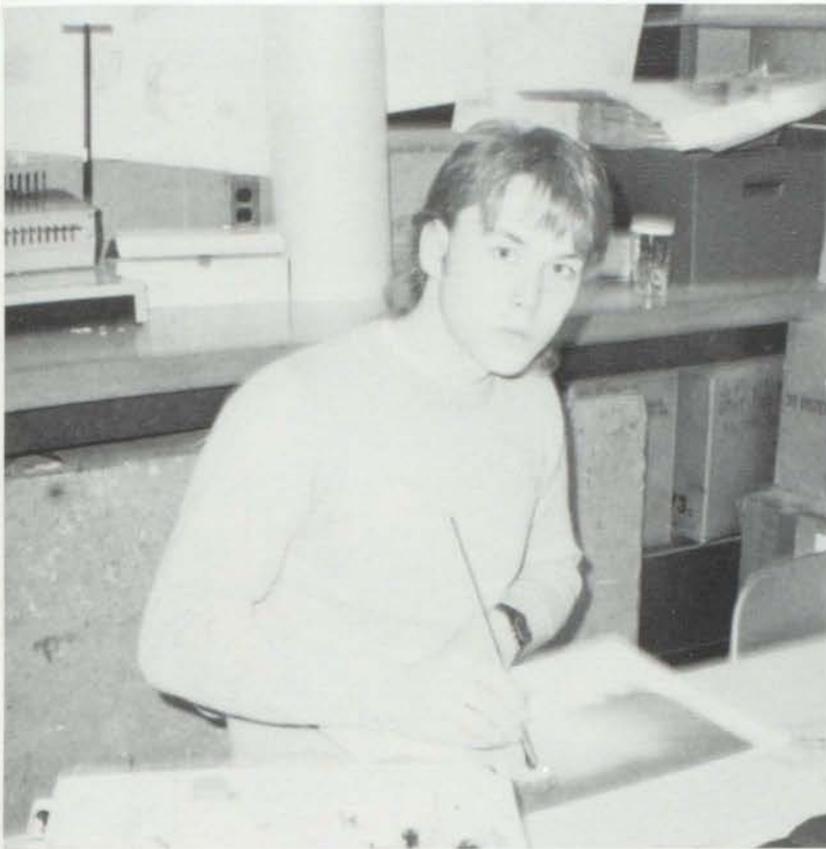

Through all, seniors knew graduation was just around the corner, and knew also that soon it would come to a close. The senior class of 1986 made the most of the time they still had.

Big Boy may have been considered the most popular guy in the senior class. He made his debut appearance on top of the entrance to the school and later showed up on bumper stickers symbolizing the class of '86. Kevin Hemme drew this poster which was hung in the pit to mock the waterballoon throwing.

Quite a few seniors took Accounting in order to learn basic accounting skills. Reading the chapters on one's own was often the most difficult part of the class, as Jerry Malec's expression displays.

In the morning or during lunch, many students took their spots in the pit. Each student would sit in one of the four sections divided by classes. Seniors gather in their half of the pit for a lunchtime get together.

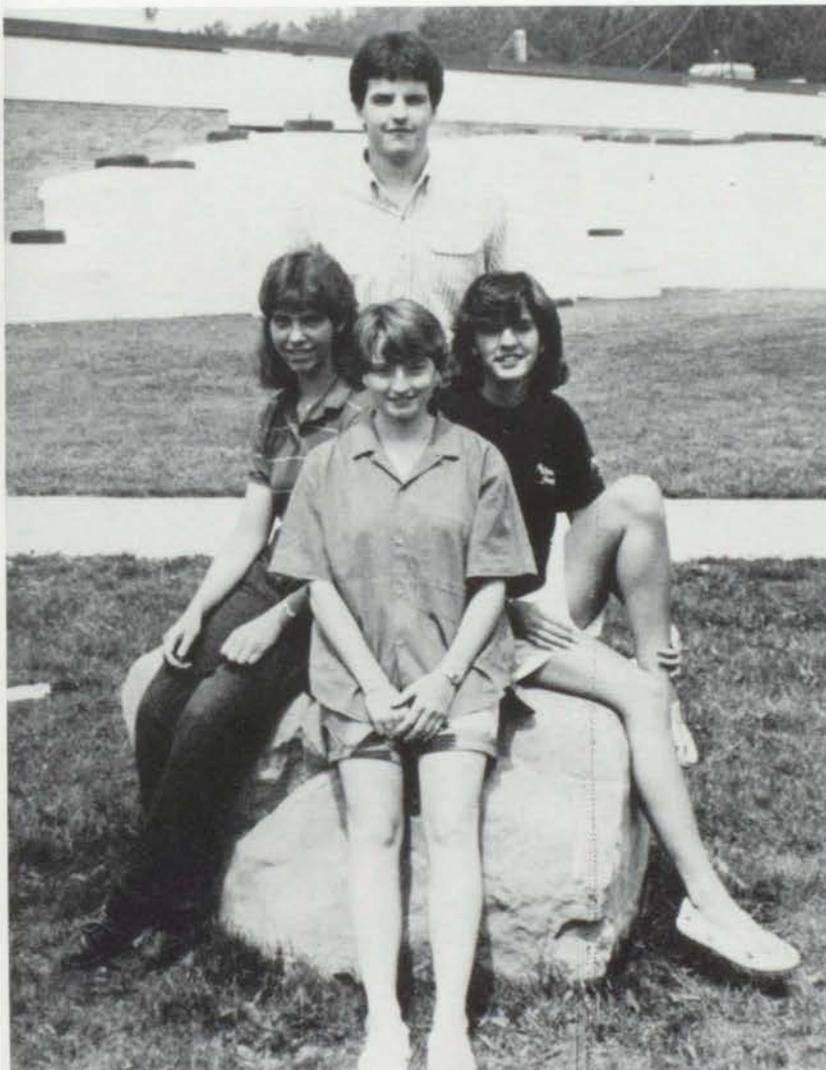

Trying his hand at oils, Eric Reusch demonstrates his ability to handle many different media.

Seniors; they finally made it through, but realized that they would miss many aspects of high school. Their many friends who brought a little spark to the day won't be there. Depending on the person, some may miss hearing "Harris'" daily comment that the school cafeteria is a "wonderful place". Dances and free time with friends on the weekends will always have special memories. Even a few favorite teachers will be missed while sitting in strange college classrooms. And seniors will miss Mark Lesher who tragically drowned last summer.

There were many memories to treasure, but seniors also looked ahead; ahead into a future that would hold excitement; that would hold life.

Mike (Elm) Day flashes that classic "Elm" look.

RAIN SOAKS, SPIRITS SOAR AT CEDAR POINT

After a long bus ride, sleepy seniors scattered throughout Cedar Point yelling for friends and dodging rain. Most went for the theater, but the more adventurous went straight for Thunder Canyon.

Most roller coasters remained shut down during the morning. Deprived, seniors meandered aimlessly through the park looking for other amusements to bide time. Some rode on a paddlewheel boat while others took a bird's eye view from the giant ferris wheel. Still Stashing dry clothes for later use, Sue Schroderus and Fernanda Faro stop in the shelter.

Rowdy riders Don Procter, Pete Hoffman, Jim Russell, Mark Chapman, and Ken Wozniak keep Bus A awake and jumpin'.

others spent the morning playing video games in the arcade.

The need for food drew seniors to the midway. Making their way from yawn to yawn, they looked for the best hunger quenchers.

Still rain fell, and many seniors soaked from walking or from rides found their way to the theater. Some seniors took this opportunity to ring out their socks and then caught a catnap before exiting into the sun.

For the last two hours seniors raced to the Demon Drop, Corkscrew, and Gemini, waited in line and then caught the ride of a life time. Most, saddened by the end of the day slowly headed for the buses. Class members prepared for the long drive home. Sleep was a popular activity now that they'd been up for more than twenty-four hours. Time was allotted for music and charades until eyelids dropped and there was silence. Once home, seniors quickly dispersed searching for beds, remembering a rain drenched, sun sparked day at Cedar Point.

Main attraction for courageous seniors is the stomach turning Cork Screw.

PROM DRIFTS "IN THE AIR TONIGHT"

Elegant manners, elegant dresses, and fragrant flowers were in the air Prom night '86. The sounds of Crystal Haze drifted in the breeze from the lower room at the Harbor Inn. The customary red carpet was out for all who traversed the steps and entered the regal splendor.

Juniors put forth much effort and careful consideration in their decorations. The rooms were filled with stars and clouds — what was "in the air tonight". Balloons provided entertainment for those with sore feet who had to rest; the voice of Donald Duck emanated from every corner by helium enhanced vocal cords.

However much the decorations caught the eye, it was the band that caught the ear. Dancers were swept off by rock-n-roll and up to date songs. A highpoint came when Crystal Haze joined up with the rowdy '86ers for their rendition of "Your Love" by the Outfield.

A classic atmosphere filled the air as tuxedos and ball-room dresses filled the room. As the night wore on, however, tennis shoes and stocking feet began shuffling around on the dance floor. Bowties and jackets disappeared and slow songs became increasingly popular.

All too soon the night drifted by and the band ended the dance with an upbeat note, playing "Mouley Mouley". People gathered up their jackets and walked slowly to the door, unwilling to accept the end of this long awaited evening.

Leisure and relaxation is desired by tired dancers. The upper floor provides the comfortable seat as well as the refreshments and fresh air. Erich Wangermen, Jennifer Blachut, Ken Todd, and Lisa Satamary chat while two chaperones enjoy the festivities.

Overdressed with a touch of the '86 style. Steve Conrad sports the tux and tails accented with top hat and cane while stepping out in his tennis shoes.

Altered voices from inhaling helium balloons provide amusement for Kate Hill, Steve Ross, and Mike Snyder as they break from the dance floor.

Perfect appearances are kept through the whole evening. Melissa Sears helps Michelle Meengs retie her silk bow.

Sharing the food as well as the evening, Robin Haas and Kristen Keith sample the hors d'oeuvres.

Last dance; slow moves and shared thoughts provide the perfect ending to Debbie Fraley and Eddie Gillespie's evening.

Karen Schuch and Scott Conti pause for a moment but still keep an ear on the Crystal Haze original.

SENIORS ESTABLISH FINAL MEMORIES

Tears for one lost, tears for joy; graduation presented the last opportunity for the class of '86 to be together as seniors. Throughout the whole year the class as close, but graduation night showed its unity as most class members gathered at Mark Leshers grave before commencement.

Buses crowded with enthusiastic seniors, waiting out the weather. When line up time was near, the buses lurched forward and cheers of joy went up. Seniors descended on Bay View auditorium, massing in the back. The noise of the students was louder than the full auditorium, both eagerly awaiting the moment. Following tradition, each class member marched with a smile of triumphance on his face.

Speaker, Kathy Biggs, encouraged each graduate to evaluate his goals and to take one of the two hundred plus paths open to him. Her analogy of a court yard with these roads captured the interest and attention of the audience, and left seniors with good advice.

Earl Frantz receives his diploma in the official procedure conducted by Kathy Biggs, school board member.

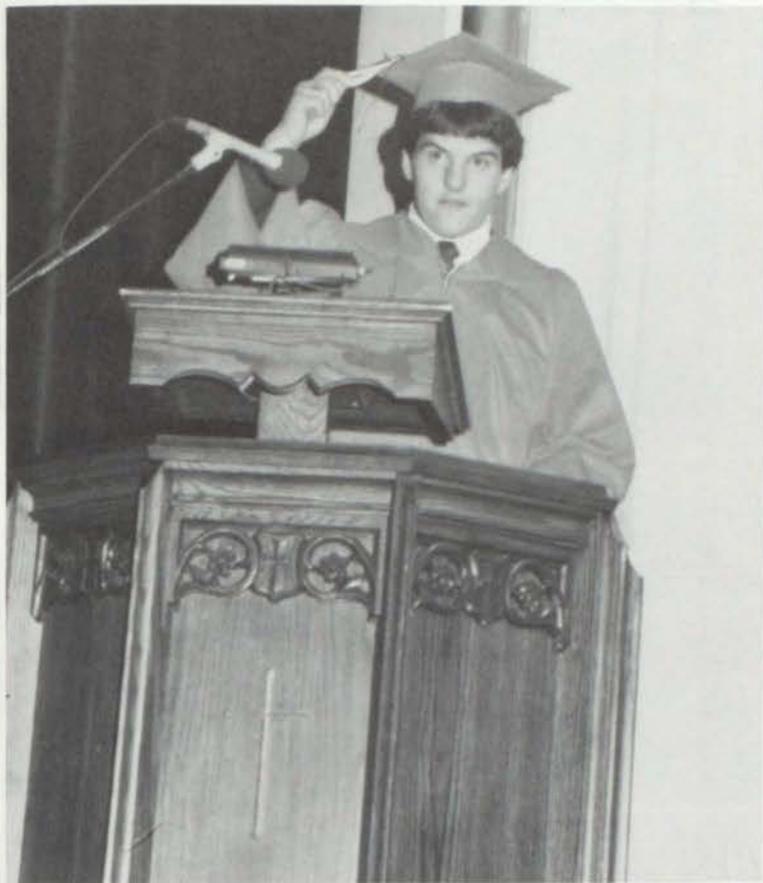

Mr. Doctor began the confirmation of the diplomas. The ceremony proceeded with very few hitches. Nervous seniors tried to remember to shake with the right, grab with the left above the right, and to face parallel to the stage. Mr. Hamilton delivered his daughter's with a kiss of congratulation.

John Parker, class president, recapped the classes closeness and encouraged them to use one of the two hundred plus paths of life. With his brief speech, JP issued the turning of the tassels and the class of 1986 entered the world of graduates. With a fine education and development of their own skills, the graduates left the auditorium. Many thoughts raced through each student's head as he left — thoughts of the future.

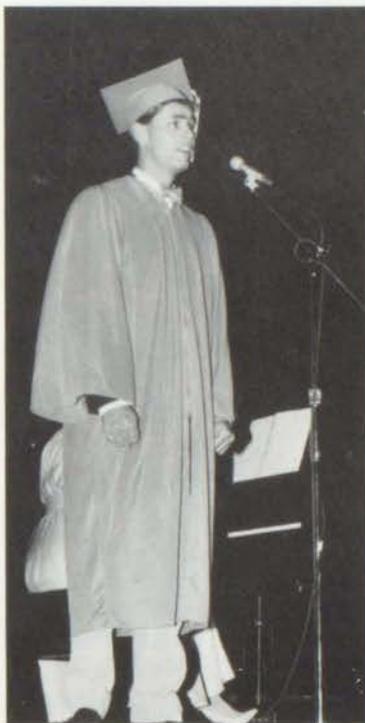

Rejoycing in the court yard outside of the auditorium, Michelle Bawkey hugs a fellow classmate.

Departing seniors Ralph Guthrie, Jayne Brown, Amy Cusack and Brenda Gravedoni pull onto Hill Stret and begin their final school bus ride.

Bill Damsgaard studies his diploma as fellow alumni Mike Dainviec and Amy Cusack witness further conformations.

Hopping out of the car, Courtney Brown and Cindy Chaffin face the blustery winter weather with a smile.

Despite the snowy cold weather Shawn Knapp and friends enjoy themselves as they cross Petoskey Street.

EDITORS NOTES

For the past three years I've spent a lot of time in the journalism department — especially after school. It's not an easy job, but I've enjoyed it, and I've learned a lot. Ms. Nicholson has given me confidence in myself and given me the chance to show what I can do. At times I might have been lax, but Ms. Nick was there to push me on. Without her PHS wouldn't have the yearbook — she's the best!

I would like to thank my staff. Seeing such a dedicated bunch after working with only three permanent staffers for the whole book last year has encouraged me ever so much. Sarah Amtsbuechler, who worked beside me second hour, was a priceless asset to the book in art work and copy. Also the photography department deserves special thanks. After a rough start, they've pulled through spending many days after hours printing for deadlines.

Thanks PHS, for the education and memories. Especially for previous days on the yearbook — wish you were here Mark. This one's for you!

Getting caught by the camera while relaxing in the pit is junior Jamie Kibbe.

Piling into the bus just before graduating are members of the class of '86'.

Simply sitting in the pit and thinking are Jim Howard, Aaron Pettit and Matt Pflieger.

Memories, the lasting momentos of our time spent in school, conjure up feelings of a wide variety. They bring to mind our year in pictures, our year spent growing and learning; a season of new beginnings. During this time we were born, we developed emotionally and mentally. We sometimes felt like we could die upon hearing bad news or when involved in a terrible situation. Elements in our life broke down, like the power failure. Many times they were built up like the planning of the pool.

We weeped upon hearing of the Soviet nuclear meltdown. Still we laughed when we saw the newly painted multicolored halls in the fall. There was a time of mourning for the space shuttle Challenger crew. Yet we still danced to the new band DISTORTION.

Many juniors were swept away with skateboards. Freshmen on the other hand gathered up their books when they were tossed out of their hands.

Friends were embraced when a cheerful reminder of love was needed, and we laughed at our foibles.

We kept silent when asked to keep a secret. Much speaking out, however, did occur. Seniors spoke with the BIG BOY, Northmen fans spoke with sign cards at games, and America spoke out against terrorism bombing Lybia. This bombing was considered the time and spark to think peacefully about our own quiet thoughts.

From the weighty thoughts of our nations troubles to the frivolous thoughts of prom attire, we encompassed a special time — a time of learning, experiences, thoughts — "Our Time".

Coach Aspenleiter takes a moment to warm his body and hands while consulting his daughter Lynne Aspenleiter.

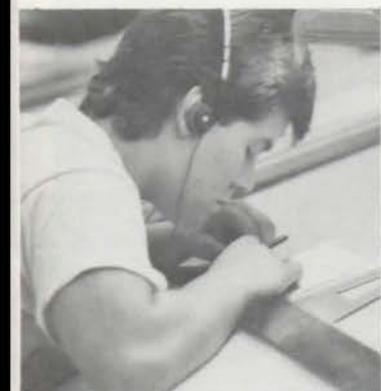

Field trips provide excitement to the usual class room work. Darren Fettig, Dave Farley, and Gary Wilson let the fun of travel override their normal dedication to ad sales.

Leveling the needle, a Red Cross nurse receives one pint of blood from each of the three donors at her station. Due to the transformer break down the donors lie in dark during the power outage.

ROCK members provide PHS with an entertaining view of rock-n-roll. Mike McPeak dresses as a head-banging, heavymetal star, participates in the lip sink contest.

This Was "OUR TIME" To Make A Difference
